The Single Homemaker and Material Culture in the Long Eighteenth Century David Hussey, Margaret

Ponsonby, 2016-03-03 The Single Homemaker and Material Culture in the Long Eighteenth Century represents a new synthesis of gender history and material culture studies. It seeks to analyse the lives and cultural expression of single men and women from 1650 to 1850 within the main focus of domestic activity: the home. Whilst there is much scholarly interest in singleness and a raft of literature on the construction and apprehension of the home, no other book has sought to bring these discrete studies together. Similarly, scholarly work has been limited in evaluating gendered consumption practices during the long eighteenth century because of an emphasis on the homes of families. Analysing the practices of single people emphasises the differences but also amplifies the similarities in their strategies of domestic life. Religion, Gender, and Industry Peter S Forsaith, Geordan Hammond, 2012-05-31

Questions have been raised in recent decades about the place of women in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries in church and society during a time of vast industrial change. These topics are broad but can be seen in microcosm in one small area of the English Midlands: the parish of Madeley, Shropshire, in which Coalbrookdale became synonymous with the industrial age. Here the evangelical Methodist clergyman John Fletcher (1729-1785) ministered between 1760 and 1785 among a population including Roman Catholics and Quakers as well as people indifferent to religion. For nearly sixty years after his death, two women, Fletcher's widow and later her protégée, had virtual charge of the parish, which became one of the last examples of Methodism within the Church of England. Through examining this specific locality with its potential for religious tension and great social significance, this multidisciplinary collection of essays engages with developing areas of research. In addition to furthering knowledge of Madeley parish and its relation to larger themes of religion, gender, and industry in eighteenth-century Britain, the impact of the Fletchers in nineteenth-century American Methodism is examined. The Domestic Revolution Ruth Goodman, 2020-04-16

Social historian and TV presenter Ruth Goodman tells the story of how the development of the coal-fired domestic range fundamentally changed not just our domestic comforts but our world. The Wills of Our Ancestors Stuart A. Raymond, 2013-01-19 Almost every book on English research highlights the need to examine the wills of our ancestors; this book gives us an easy-to-read, detailed guide. FGS Forum: What are wills and how can they be used for family and local history research? How can you interpret them and get as much insight from them as possible? Wills are key documents for exploring the lives of our ancestors, their circumstances, and the world they knew. This practical handbook is the essential guide to understanding wills. Wills expert Stuart Raymond traces the history and purpose of probate records and guides readers through the many pitfalls and possibilities these fascinating documents present. He describes the process of probate, gives a detailed account of the content of the various different types of record, and advises readers on how they can be used to throw light into the past, offering factual evidence that no genealogist or local historian can afford to ignore. In a series of concise, fact-filled chapters, Raymond explains how wills came into being, who made them, and how they were made; how the probate system operates; how wills and inventories can be found and how much can be learned from them In addition to covering probate records in England and Wales he includes the Channel Islands Ireland the Isle of Man and Scotland This introduction is aimed primarily at family historians who are interested in the wills of particular individuals who are seeking proof of descent and local historians who are interested in the wealth of local historical information that can be gathered from them Production and
