Modelling And Decisions In Economics:

Decision Economics. Designs, Models, and Techniques for Boundedly Rational Decisions Edgardo

Bucciarelli, Shu-Heng Chen, Juan Manuel Corchado, 2018-12-28 The special session on Decision Economics DECON is a scientific forum held annually which is focused on sharing ideas projects research results models and experiences associated with the complexity of behavioural decision processes and socio economic phenomena In 2018 DECON was held at Campus Tecnológico de la Fabrica de Armas University of Castilla La Mancha Toledo Spain as part of the 15th International Conference on Distributed Computing and Artificial Intelligence For the third consecutive year this book have drawn inspiration from Herbert A Simon's interdisciplinary legacy and in particular is devoted to designs models and techniques for boundedly rational decisions involving several fields of study and expertise It is worth noting that the recognition of relevant decision making takes place in a range of critical subject areas and research fields including economics finance information systems small and international business management operations and production Therefore decision making issues are of fundamental importance in all branches of economics addressed with different methodological approaches As a matter of fact the study of decision making has become the focus of intense research efforts both theoretical and applied forming a veritable bridge between theory and practice as well as science and business organisations whose pillars are based on insightful cutting edge experimental behavioural and computational approaches on the one hand and celebrating the value of science as well as the close relationship between economics and complexity on the other In this respect the international scientific community acknowledges Herbert A Simon's research endeavours to understand the processes involved in economic decision making and their implications for the advancement of economic professions Within the field of decision making indeed Simon has become a mainstay of bounded rationality and satisficing His rejection of the standard unrealistic decision making models adopted by neoclassical economists inspired social scientists worldwide with the purpose to develop research programmes aimed at studying decision making empirically experimentally and computationally The main achievements concern decision making for individuals firms markets governments institutions and last but not least science and research This book of selected papers tackles these issues that Simon broached in a professional career spanning more than sixty years The Editors of this book dedicated it to Herb

Quantum Decision Theory and Complexity Modelling in Economics and Public Policy Anirban Chakraborti, Emmanuel Haven, Sudip Patra, Naresh Singh, 2023-09-21 This book is an outcome of the interdisciplinary conference held at OP Jindal Global University Quantum Decision making and Complexity modeling and their possible applications in social sciences economics finance and public policy The volume builds upon the emerging fields of Econophysics Complexity theory and Quantum like modelling in cognition and social sciences and their plausible applications in economics and public policy There can be deep linkages between the micro meso and macro scales at which these paradigms operate In this data driven age greater amounts of information along with the facility to harvest sort and process said information have permitted an expansion of the capability to study a society's various factors to a degree of detail and inclusiveness that has never before been available to researchers. As a result, an increasing number of throughlines is being discovered, revealing heretofore unknown connections between various disciplines and enhancing the study of such societal tropes as finance, language, shared behavior, and many others. As the reader will see with clearer understanding of the interconnectedness of society's assorted parts, comes a clearer understanding of the society as a whole. We have received critical thoughts from noted experts in social and natural sciences to explore possible interconnections. The editors of this book earnestly hope that the critical reviews presented in this volume will stimulate further scholarly interest but also interest among policy practitioners for the purpose of exploring possibilities for creating a new paradigm for comprehending pressing issues of deep uncertainty and emergence in social dynamics.

Decision Modelling for Health Economic Evaluation Andrew H. Briggs, Karl Claxton, Mark J. Sculpher, 2006. In financially constrained health systems across the world, increasing emphasis is being placed on the ability to demonstrate that health care interventions are not only effective but also cost effective. This book deals with decision modelling techniques that can be used to estimate the value for money of various interventions, including medical devices, surgical procedures, diagnostic technologies, and pharmaceuticals. Particular emphasis is placed on the importance of the appropriate representation of uncertainty in the evaluative process and the implication this uncertainty has for decision making and the need for future research. This highly practical guide takes the reader through the key principles and approaches of modelling techniques. It begins with the basics of constructing different forms of the model, the population of the model with input parameter estimates, analysis of the results, and progression to the holistic view of models as a valuable tool for informing future research exercises. Case studies and exercises are supported with online templates and solutions. This book will help analysts understand the contribution of decision analytic modelling to the evaluation of health care programmes.

ABOUT THE SERIES: Economic evaluation of health interventions is a growing specialist field, and this series of practical handbooks will tackle in depth topics superficially addressed in more general health economics books. Each volume will include illustrative material, case histories, and worked examples to encourage the reader to apply the methods discussed, with supporting material provided online. This series is aimed at health economists in academia, the pharmaceutical industry, and the health sector, those on advanced health economics courses, and health researchers in associated fields.

Tradeoffs in Agriculture: Pesticides and the Sustainability of Andean Potato Production C. Crissman, J.M.

Antle, Susan M. Capalbo, 1997-11-30 Today the goal of designing highly productive sustainable agricultural production systems is at the forefront of the agricultural research agenda around the world The key to designing sustainable agricultural production technologies is in understanding their economic environmental and human health impacts This volume presents a methodology designed to quantify such impacts and to represent them as tradeoffs We propose this tradeoff methodology as an approach to accomplish two essential elements in achieving agricultural sustainability First the tradeoffs method is a key to the design of successful interdisciplinary research projects to assess sustainability of production systems Second the tradeoffs method provides a successful means to communicate research findings to policy makers and the public To put this effort into perspective we would like to explain its origins and reflect on its implications for conducting future research In 1987 the Rockefeller Foundation commissioned a report that set out to ascertain why in view of the extensive literatures on certain classes of agricultural pollution there had been few if any attempts to incorporate pollution externalities into the rather voluminous literature on the assessment of agricultural research impacts Antle and Capalbo 1988 see also Antle 1994
