Matter and Consciousness Paul M. Churchland, 1988 In Matter and Consciousness Paul Churchland clearly presents the advantages and disadvantages of such difficult issues in philosophy of mind as behaviorism reductive materialism functionalism and eliminative materialism This new edition incorporates the striking developments that have taken place in neuroscience cognitive science and artificial intelligence and notes their expanding relevance to philosophical issues Churchland organizes and clarifies the new theoretical and experimental results of the natural sciences for a wider philosophical audience observing that this research bears directly on questions concerning the basic elements of cognitive activity and their implementation in real physical systems How is it he asks that living creatures perform some cognitive tasks so swiftly and easily where computers do them only badly or not at all Most significant for philosophy Churchland asserts is the support these results tend to give to the reductive and the eliminative versions of materialism A Bradford Book

Philosophy of Mind Manuel Curado, Steven S. Gouveia, 2017 The human mind is one of the most extraordinary mysteries of the contemporary sciences and philosophy We know for sure that we have one and that we have feelings and conscious experience But why is that This anthology addresses contemporary issues in the field of study that is the philosophy of mind It is divided into five main parts i the concept of Self in the contemporary philosophy of mind ii sensory experience odors vision and colors iii Artificial Intelligence the future the ethics and the costs iv the relationship between neuroscience and philosophy and finally v the influences and history of the philosophy of mind This book will be useful for specialists of the field but also for others who are interested in some of the more updated sciences of the mind

Causality and Mind

Nicholas Jolley, 2013-11-28 Causality and Mind presents seventeen of Nicholas Jolley's essays on early modern philosophy which focus on two main themes One theme is the continuing debate over the nature of causality in the period from Descartes to Hume Jolley shows that despite his revolutionary stance Descartes did no serious re thinking about causality it was left to his unorthodox disciple Malebranche to argue that there is no place for natural causality in the new mechanistic picture of the physical world Several essays explore critical reactions to Malebranche's occasionalism in the writings of Leibniz Berkeley and Hume and show how in their different ways Leibniz and Hume respond to Malebranche by re instating the traditional view that science is the search for causes A second theme of the volume is the set of issues posed by Descartes' innovations in the philosophy of mind It is argued that Malebranche is once again a pivotal figure In opposition to Descartes Malebranche insists that ideas the objects of thought are not psychological but abstract entities he thus opposes Descartes' dustbin theory of the mind Malebranche also challenges Descartes' assumption that intentionality is a mark of the mental and his commitment to the superiority of self knowledge over knowledge of body Other essays discuss the debate over innate ideas Locke's polemics against Descartes' theory of mind and the issue of Leibniz's phenomenalism A major aim of the volume is to show that philosophers in the period are systematic critics of their contemporaries and predecessors

Body, Mind and Self in Hume's Critical Realism Fred Wilson, 2013-05-02 This essay proposes that Hume's non substantialist bundle account of minds is basically correct The concept of a person is not a metaphysical notion but a forensic one that of a being who enters into the moral and normative relations of civil society A person is a bundle but it is also a structured bundle Hume's metaphysics of relations is argued must be replaced by a more adequate one such as that of Russell but beyond that Hume's account is essentially correct In particular it is argued that it is one's character that constitutes one's identity and that sympathy and the passions of pride and humility are central in forming and maintaining one's character and one's identity as a person But also central is one's body a person is an embodied consciousness the notion that one's body is essential to one's identity is defended at length Various concepts of mind and consciousness are examined for example neutral monism and intentionality and also the concept of privacy and our inferences to other minds

Descartes and the Ontology of Everyday Life Deborah J. Brown,Calvin G. Normore,2019-10-30 The seventeenth century was a period of extraordinary invention discovery and revolutions in scientific social and political orders It was a time of expansive automation biological discovery rapid advances in medical knowledge of animal trials and a questioning of the boundaries between species human and non human between social classes and of the assumed naturalness of political inequality This book gives a tour through those objects ordinary and extraordinary which captivated the philosophical imagination of the single most important French philosopher of this period Ren Descartes Deborah J Brown and Calvin G Normore document Descartes attempt to make sense of the complex composite objects of human and divine invention consistent with the fundamental tenets of his metaphysical system Their central argument is that far from reducing all the categories of ordinary experience to the two basic categories of substance mind and body Descartes philosophy recognises irreducible composites that resist reduction and require their own distinctive modes of explanation

Foundations of Mind Tyler Burge,2007 Foundations of Mind brings together a set of essays which established Tyler Burge as one of the foremost contributors to philosophical research on mind and knowledge The volume presents 19 essays published between 1975 and 2003 including his highly influential series on individualism
