English Historical Morphology and Word-formation Klaus Faiss, 1992

Interaction of Borrowing and Word Formation Pius ten Hacken, 2020-03-02 Drawing on detailed case studies across a range of languages including English German Dutch Italian Portuguese Polish Czech Russian Lithuanian and Greek this book examines the different factors that determine the outcome of the interaction between borrowing and word formation Historically borrowing has largely been studied from etymological and lexicographical perspectives and word formation has been included in morphology However this book focuses on their mutual influence and interaction Bringing together a range of contributors each chapter illustrates how borrowing and word formation are in competition as alternative naming processes while also showing how they can influence each other The case studies are framed by an introduction that describes the general background and a conclusion that summarises the main findings

Types of Variation Terttu Nevalainen, Juhani Klemola, Mikko Laitinen, 2006-06-01 This volume interfaces three fields of linguistics rarely discussed in the same context Its underlying theme is linguistic variation and the ways in which historical linguists and dialectologists may learn from insights offered by typology and vice versa The aim of the contributions is to raise the awareness of these linguistic subdisciplines of each other and to encourage their cross fertilization to their mutual benefit If linguistic typology is to unify the study of all types of linguistic variation this variation both diatopic and diachronic will enrich typological research itself With the aim of capturing the relevant dimensions of variation the studies in this volume make use of new methodologies including electronic corpora and databases which enable cross and intralinguistic comparisons dialectally and across time Based on original research and unified by an innovative theme the volume will be of interest to both students and teachers of linguistics and Germanic languages
