Fidelia Ibekwe-SanJuan, Thomas M Dousa, 2013-08-30 This book addresses some of the key questions that scientists have been asking themselves for centuries what is knowledge What is information How do we know that we know something How do we construct meaning from the perceptions of things Although no consensus exists on a common definition of the concepts of information and communication few can reject the hypothesis that information whether perceived as object or as process is a pre condition for knowledge Epistemology is the study of how we know things anglophone meaning or the study of how scientific knowledge is arrived at and validated francophone conception To adopt an epistemological stance is to commit oneself to render an account of what constitutes knowledge or in procedural terms to render an account of when one can claim to know something An epistemological theory imposes constraints on the interpretation of human cognitive interaction with the world It goes without saying that different epistemological theories will have more or less restrictive criteria to distinguish what constitutes knowledge from what is not If information is a pre condition for knowledge acquisition giving an account of how knowledge is acquired should impact our comprehension of information and communication as concepts While a lot has been written on the definition of these concepts less research has attempted to establish explicit links between differing theoretical conceptions of these concepts and the underlying epistemological stances This is what this volume attempts to do It offers a multidisciplinary exploration of information and communication as perceived in different disciplines and how those perceptions affect theories of knowledge Making Media Mark Deuze, Mirjam
