Twentieth-Century Russian Poetry Katharine Hodgson, Joanne Shelton, Alexandra Smith, 2017-04-21 The canon of Russian poetry has been reshaped since the fall of the Soviet Union A multi authored study of changing cultural memory and identity this revisionary work charts Russia s shifting relationship to its own literature in the face of social upheaval Literary canon and national identity are inextricably tied together the composition of a canon being the attempt to single out those literary works that best express a nation s culture This process is of course fluid and subject to significant shifts particularly at times of epochal change This volume explores changes in the canon of twentieth century Russian poetry from the 1991

collapse of the Soviet Union to the end of Putin's second term as Russian President in 2008. In the wake of major institutional changes such as the abolition of state censorship and the introduction of a market economy, the way was open for wholesale reinterpretation of twentieth-century poets such as Iosif Brodskii, Anna Akhmatova and Osip Mandelstam, their works and their lives. In the last twenty years many critics have discussed the possibility of various coexisting canons rooted in official and non-official literature and suggested replacing the term Soviet literature with a new definition: Russian literature of the Soviet period. Contributions to this volume explore the multiple factors involved in reshaping the canon understood as a body of literary texts given exemplary or representative status as classics. Among factors which may influence the composition of the canon are educational institutions, competing views of scholars and critics including figures outside Russia and the self-canonising activity of poets themselves. Canon revision further reflects contemporary concerns with the destabilising effects of emigration and the internet and the desire to reconnect with pre-revolutionary cultural traditions through a narrative of the past which foregrounds continuity. Despite persistent nostalgic yearnings in some quarters for a single canon, the current situation is defiantly diverse, balancing both the Soviet literary tradition and the parallel contemporaneous literary worlds of the emigration and the underground. Required reading for students, teachers and lovers of Russian literature. Twentieth Century Russian Poetry brings our understanding of post-Soviet Russia up to date. The English Literature & Other Essays Geoff Woodbridge, 2017-10-13. Collected over several years of study in the Arts, these essays include subjects including Shakespeare's Othello, Katherine Mansfield, Skelton, Du Maurier, M. P. McGuire, P. K. Dick, Chekhov's Cherry Orchard, Stevenson, Doyle, Voltaire, Heaney, Beckett, Ginsberg, Naipaul, Benin, bronzes, Christianity, Metropolis, The Diva, Lonely Londoners, The Dubliners and the seaside for leisure. Essential reading for any student studying English literature and the arts to assist with their own essays through extended learning. Literary Journalism in British and American Prose Doug Underwood, 2019-05-10. The debate surrounding fake news versus real news is nothing new. From Jonathan Swift's work as an acerbic anonymous journal editor turned novelist to reporter Mark Twain's hoax stories to Mary Ann Evans' literary reviews written under her pseudonym George Eliot, famous journalists and literary figures have always mixed fact, imagination and critical commentary to produce memorable works. Contrasting the rival yet complementary traditions of literary or new journalism in Britain and the U.S., this study explores the credibility of some of the great works of English literature.
