Population Change in Southeast Asia Wilfredo F. Arce, Gabriel C. Alvarez, 1983 A collection of selected and condensed reports on the broad subject of Population Change in Southeast Asia this book represents the work of young Southeast Asian social scientists Their research has helped to cast more light on the problems associated with rapid population growth more specifically the areas of fertility population mobility family planning the evaluation of family planning programs and the environmental influence of demographic behaviour

Global Environmental Changes in South Asia A.P. Mitra, C. Sharma, 2012-03-05 The Fourth Assessment Report of IPCC having clinched in 2007 the evidence of global warming on account of anthropogenic activities backed with scientific data gathered and analyzed globally has made it mandatory world over to focus efforts on delineation of the anticipated adverse impacts of global warming on regional temperature and moisture regimes and the linked hydrologic climatic and biospheric processes First and foremost is the requirement to understand vulnerability to food and livelihood security in various ecosystems on mainland mid range and high mountains as well as coastal areas including CEZs The projected global temperature rise of the order of about two degrees or more and further rise at a decadal rate of around 0.2°C is sufficient to make grievous changes in sea surface level and submerge many low lying coastal areas around the world thereby possibly causing unprecedented losses to human habitat and livelihood in the coming years A rise in climate variability is also becoming increasingly evident with potential direct impact on agricultural performance on water accessibility and on weather extremes Developing countries due to their poor infrastructure limited resources and large impoverished population are likely to face more intense and widespread adverse impact of climate change than the developed world and also have limited adaptation capacity

Population Redistribution and Development in South Asia L.A. Kosinski, K.M. Elahi, 2012-12-06 The mutual relationship between change in population distribution and its determinants and consequences on one hand and social and economic development on the other is becoming an increasingly important area of concern for researchers policy makers and planners alike During the last several years the International Geographical Union Commission on Population Geography has devoted much of its attention to this problem and organized a series of international meetings focusing on population redistribution and its ramifications in different parts of the world During one such meeting held in 1980 in Karachi Pakistan some thirty papers were submitted by participants coming mostly from five countries in South Asia Bangladesh India Nepal Pakistan and Sri Lanka The present volume is an outcome of that symposium but it should not be regarded merely as a report of proceedings these have been published separately by the Commission Furthermore all Pakistani papers were published in their original version in a separate volume edited by M 1 Siddiqi who coordinated local arrangements for the meeting on behalf of Karachi University This present volume offers only a selection of the original papers all substantially edited and thoroughly revised and brings them together with additionally solicited texts All original figures have been redrawn and tables and references have been updated and standardized as much as possible

Tan, Steve K.L. Chan, 2023-06-25 This volume is a collection of articles that examines how the COVID 19 pandemic affected and intersected with various Southeast Asian contexts in the broad areas of migration education and demographic policy At the height of the pandemic from 2020 22 the resulting restrictions to international travel ensuing nationwide lockdowns and eventual economic crises formed part of what many commentators referred to as a new normal Apart from being a global health crisis the pandemic disrupted and transformed the experience of everyday life at all levels of society where many of its effects are now likely irreversible In particular the impact of the pandemic certainly affected the most vulnerable individuals and communities throughout the region especially in countries that are experiencing rapid ageing such as Singapore and Thailand Examples of the most affected include low wage migrant workers the disabled and the children of impoverished families For many who were already living in a state of precarity the structural side effects of the pandemic were at times more deadly than the coronavirus itself as it often negatively impacted livelihood social emotional ties and overall well being At the same time the new normal has further created conditions that raise the likelihood of occupational precarity even for long term professionals within established fields like education In other words few experienced the COVID 19 pandemic without encountering both tangible and intangible challenges regardless of where one was situated Hence by merging the theme of precarity with that of the pandemic s undeniable and exacerbating effects this volume hopes to establish a useful platform to reflect and learn from a range of scholarly views and to contribute to new knowledge and inform policymaking in Southeast Asian societies This volume is a collection of thoughtful scholarship that examines the challenges that have been made more acute by the COVID 19 pandemic among and between Southeast Asian populations The chapters here consider how the global public health crisis and its policy responses have aggravated various forms of precarity that had taken root in pockets of Southeast Asian societies While history will be the ultimate judge of the true social and cultural consequences of COVID 19 policy responses Populations and Precarity during the COVID 19 Pandemic Southeast Asian Perspectives is an urgent reminder that while the worst of the pandemic may be behind us much more remains to be done to relieve the most vulnerable among our populations of a different kind of long COVID Associate Professor Lim Lee Ching Dean of S R Nathan School of Human Development Singapore University of Social Sciences We have all witnessed the impact that the COVID 19 pandemic had on our daily lives This was especially true in areas such as Southeast Asia where local and regional economies rely on the movement of workers both skilled and unskilled The compilation of chapters in this volume provides an interesting examination of the struggles faced by many in Southeast Asia during this difficult period Readers will realize that what was merely an inconvenience for some people was life altering for others I highly recommend reading this book to increase awareness of the hidden consequences of such global catastrophes and perhaps better prepare for the next global event It is hoped that this collection will inspire actions to resolve some of the current issues faced by vulnerable populations Professor Gary La Point Professor of Practice in Supply Chain Whitman School of Management at Syracuse University A

Leveraging Urbanization in South Asia Peter Ellis, Mark Roberts, 2015-11-13 The number of people in South Asia's cities rose by 130 million between 2000 and 2011 more than the entire population of Japan This was linked to an improvement in productivity and a reduction in the incidence of extreme poverty But the region's cities have struggled to cope with the pressure of population growth on land housing infrastructure basic services and the environment As a result urbanization in South Asia remains underleveraged in its ability to deliver widespread improvements in both prosperity and livability Leveraging Urbanization in South Asia is about the state of South Asia's urbanization and the market and policy failures that have taken the region's urban areas to where they are today and the hard policy actions needed if the region's cities are to leverage urbanization better This publication provides original empirical and diagnostic analysis of urbanization and related
