Population Health And Aging:

Population Health and Aging Albert I. Hermalin, Professor of Health Systems Administration and Population Health Michael A Stoto, 2002-09-15 Population Health is an emerging field that draws heavily on two disciplines demography and epidemiology In recent years as demographers have become increasingly interested in health transitions and trajectories and as epidemiologists have become increasingly interested in population level disease dynamics the two fields have converged in many ways But their separate histories cultures languages organizations and missions have acted as impediments to dialogue among practitioners in the two fields This volume seeks to improve conversation across the disciplines It brings together reports on current research that provide examples of work that bridges or has the potential to bridge the two fields and helps identify organizational and institutional pathways that can encourage collaboration

The Aging Population in the Twenty-First Century National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Commission on Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on National Statistics, Panel on Statistics for an Aging Population, 1988-02-01 It is not news that each of us grows old What is relatively new however is that the average age of the American population is increasing More and better information is required to assess plan for and meet the needs of a graying population The Aging Population in the Twenty First Century examines social economic and demographic changes among the aged as well as many health related topics health promotion and disease prevention quality of life health care system financing and use and the quality of care especially long term care Recommendations for increasing and improving the data available as well as for ensuring timely access to them are also included

Handbook of Research on Economic and Social Impacts of Population Aging Bayar, Yilmaz, 2021-06-25 The increases in global wealth and the developments in the field of health have led to decreases in mortality rates increases in life expectancy and decreases in fertility rate leading to a population that is rapidly consisting more and more of older individuals The demographic changes affect nearly all parts of society including economics education health social security systems socio cultural activities and more Thus it is essential to study the impacts that an aging population will have on society The Handbook of Research on Economic and Social Impacts of Population Aging analyzes the economic and social impacts of population aging from a multidisciplinary perspective Covering topics such as life expectancy social welfare health social security and more this book is essential for social scientists sociologists demographers economists medical professionals government officials policymakers professionals researchers managers students and academicians looking to understand the effects of an aging population on modern society The Health of Aging Hispanics Jacqueline L. Angel, Keith E. Whitfield, 2007-08-06 The emergence of the Hispanic population in the United States and the increasing profile of Latin America on the North and South American continents have raised the profile of Latino issues in the American consciousness Much of this attention however has revolved around trends in culture art food and music or pathological concerns about poverty crime drugs and immigration At best the scholarly and policy assessments of the implications of the impact of Latinos in the United States revolve around Mexican Americans Puerto Ricans and Central Americans as well as the children of an older Cuban population and their struggles to achieve a measure of education healthcare employment and civil rights What have not been adequately addressed are the demographic trends affecting Latinos in the United States Mexico and Latin America particularly the aging of the Hispanic population and its resultant health and long term care needs That Latinos are living longer and shifting from a youthful population to an increasingly older cohort is little known except among the small cadre of Hispanic gerontologists Ironically this invisibility of aging Hispanics is juxtaposed to the almost picked response of the U S media and public toward the aging of the general U S population and the social and political controversies over Social Security Medicare and health care costs The policy debates of an aging U S population as a whole arise from substantial research and policy analysis a level of attention not seen with regard to the aging of the Hispanic population Aging, Health, and Longevity in the Mexican-Origin Population Jacqueline L. Angel, Fernando Torres-Gil, Kyriakos Markides, 2012-02-09 Aging Health and Longevity in the Mexican Origin Population creates a foundation for an interdisciplinary discussion of the trajectory of disability and long term care for older people of Mexican origin from a binational perspective Although the literature on Latino elders in the United States is growing few of these studies or publications offer the breadth and depth contained in this book Social Determinants of Health for the Global Aging Population in Pandemic and Disaster Environments Lené Levy-Storms, Mary Beth Morrissey, Marcia G. Ory, Camille Castelyn, Soohyoung Rain Lee, 2025-02-18 From a biopsychosocial perspective physical and to a lesser extent mental health have been a priority for researchers policymakers and healthcare providers relative to social health The hegemony of physical health weakened during the COVID pandemic as mental and social health also emerged as equally important and at risk at the same time Not since the 1960s has society attended to the social vulnerabilities of older adults particularly in institutional settings For the first time the urgency of providing care for older adults has transcended physical settings as frontline workers in hospitals prisons schools and other community based settings as well as families in their own homes also emerged as vulnerable The institutional care workforce faces an ongoing crisis at the same time some countries have restricted migration posing a threat to in home and community based long term care COVID has forced healthcare policymakers to prioritize both acute and long term health issues simultaneously as society tries to regain full functionality COVID and future natural and unnatural disasters associated with climate change threats to democracy discrimination against societal groups based on age gender race ethnicity religion and income status promise to challenge us all to acknowledge and act such that our well being is everybody s well being across the life course We are all aging and how different age groups fare affects how other age groups fare
