Portici Kathleen A. Parker,Jacqueline L. Hernigle,1990 Manassas National Battlefield Park s General Management Plan 1983 named the Wheeler Tract as the site for the relocation of the picnic area and its attendant facilities

The area chosen for this relocation had been previously identified as the site of the late eighteenth to early nineteenth century complex known as Portici. An archeological study of the proposed relocation area was required pursuant to planning and development. Nineteenth century Portici evolved from a small tenant occupied farmstead established during the eighteenth century. This tenant farm grew into a middling tobacco plantation called Pohoke. Later the eighteenth century dwelling was abandoned when Portici mansion house was constructed in circa 1820. Portici plantation became a flourishing middling multiple grain based plantation by the eve of the American Civil War. Archeological and archival work was conducted to document and assess the eligibility of Pohoke Portici and the Lewis house for nomination to the National Register of Historic Places. Collectively these three sites with all their ancillary sites on the Wheeler tract graphically depict the evolution of local lifeways and patterns of development in a frontier Piedmont plantation. Sintering of Functional Materials Igor Shishkovsky, 2018-02-07 Powder based materials and treatment technologies rank high in contemporary scientific technical progress due to their numerous significant technoeconomic qualities. Sintering of such materials allows saving on materials and lowering the cost price of the product as well as manufacturing complex composite materials with unique combinations of qualities. Materials of record high values of some physic mechanical and also biochemical characteristics can be obtained owing to structural peculiarities of super dispersed condition. Sintering of functional materials for innovative perspectives in automotive and aeronautical engineering, space technology, lightweight construction, mechanical engineering, modern design and many other applications requires established relationship in the materials process properties system. Therefore the industry being interested in understanding theoretical modeling and control over behavior of such powdered materials has promoted the research activities of this manuscript's authors.
