England 1540-1640 Robert Tittler,2013-09-05 In this the first comprehensive study of post Reformation provincial English portraiture Robert Tittler investigates the growing affinity for secular portraiture in Tudor and early Stuart England a cultural and social phenomenon which can be said to have produced a public for that genre He breaks new ground in placing portrait patronage and production in this era in the broad social and cultural context of post Reformation England and in distinguishing between native English provincial portraiture which was often highly vernacular and foreign influenced portraiture of the court and metropolis which tended towards the formal and polite Tittler describes the burgeoning public for portraiture of this era as more than the familiar court and London based presence but rather as a phenomenon which was surprisingly widespread both socially and geographically throughout the realm He suggests that provincial portraiture differed from the mainstream cosmopolitan portraiture of the day in its workmanship materials inspirations and even vocabulary showing how its native English roots continued to guide its production Innovative chapters consider the aims and vocabulary of English provincial portraiture the relationship of portraiture and heraldry the painter s occupation in provincial as opposed to metropolitan England and the contrasting availability of materials and training in both provincial and metropolitan areas The work as a whole contributes to both art history and social history it speaks to admirers and collectors
