Lanham, MD: University Press Of America (February 26, 1998)

This book is a study of the interaction between liberal economic and political reforms in Nigeria between 1983 and 1993. The work investigates the causes and outcome of the Nigerian state's decision to undertake a simultaneous, dual transition. It considers the role of the state, multilateral organizations and domestic politics as potential causes of policy and the dynamic interaction between economic and political processes during the transition as determinants of the outcome. Few studies focus on the interaction between the role of the multilaterals, external creditors, and the state as well as the state and powerful domestic actors as determinants of development strategy on contemporary Africans. Nigeria's dual transition reveals complex power struggles by these domestic and international actors. By providing evidence of the dynamic interaction between state, society, and external forces during a period of grave economic crisis, the underlying power relations which shaped the possibility of economic recovery and democracy become evident. This book advances interdisciplinary, theoretical dialogue and contributes to policy studies by analyzing the interaction of policymaking with socioeconomic and political outcomes.

Arthur, 2006-01-01 The New African Diaspora in North America brings together sociologists social workers geographers economists anthropologists and others to explore the African immigrant experience from a multi disciplinary perspective The contributors shed light on the factors behind the increasing wave in African immigration to the U S and Canada the socio economic characteristics of African immigrants their spatial distribution obstacles and contributions Despite their increasing presence African immigrant groups in the U S and Canada have engendered relatively little scholarly research on their pre and post migration experience This collection helps fill that void and will be valuable reading for anyone interested in African Diaspora studies

India's Nuclear Debate Priyanjali Malik, 2014-03-21 Making the right wing Bharatiya Janata Party's nuclear tests in 1998 its starting point this book examines how opinion amongst India's attentive public shifted from supporting nuclear abstinence to accepting and even feeling a need for a more assertive policy by examining the complexities of the debate in India on nuclear policy in the 1990s The study seeks to account for the shift in opinion by looking at the parallel processes of how nuclear policy became an important part of the public discourse in India and what it came to symbolise for the country's intelligentsia during this decade It argues that the pressure on New Delhi in the early 1990s to fall in line with the non proliferation regime magnified by India's declining global influence at the time caused the issue to cease being one of defence making it a focus of nationalist pride instead The country's nuclear programme thus emerged as a test of its ability to withstand external compulsions guaranteeing not so much the sanctity of its borders as a certain political idea of it that of a modern scientific and most importantly sovereign state able to defend its policies and set its goals

African Traditions in the Study of Religion, Diaspora and Gendered Societies Ezra Chitando, 2016-04-01 The historiography of African religions and religions in Africa presents a remarkable shift from the study of Africa as Object to Africa as Subject thus translating the subject from obscurity into the global community of the academic study of religion. This book presents a unique multidisciplinary exploration of African Traditions in the Study of Religion, Diaspora and Gendered Societies. The book is structured under two main sections. The first provides insights into the interface between Religion and Society. The second features African Diaspora together with Youth and Gender which have not yet featured prominently in studies on religion in Africa. Contributors drawn from diverse African and global contexts situate current scholarly traditions of the study of African religions within the purview of academic encounter and exchanges with non-African scholars and non-African contexts. African scholars enrich the study of religions from their respective academic and methodological orientations. Jacob Kehinde Olupona stands out as a pioneer in the socio-scientific interpretation of African indigenous religion and religions in Africa and the new African Diaspora. This book honours his immense contribution to an emerging field of study and research.

Europe Reset Richard Youngs, 2017-10-24 In the last decade the EU has been hit by a series of crises, most recently the UK's decision to leave the union following the Brexit referendum. In light of this, questions have been raised about the need to reform the whole model of European integration with the aim of making the union more flexible and more accountable. In this book, Richard Youngs proposes an alternative vision of European co-operation and shows how the EU must re-invent itself if it is to survive. He argues that citizens should play a greater role in European decision-making, that there should be radically more flexibility in the process of integration and that Europe needs to take a new, more coherent approach to questions of defence and security. In proposing this model for a reset version of Europe, Youngs reinvigorates the debate around the future of Europe and puts forward a new agenda for the future of the EU.

State Fragility, State Formation, and Human Security in Nigeria M. Okome, 2013-04-17 Since the 1990s, attempts at democratic transition have generated hopes for civil society as well as ambivalence about the state. The interdisciplinary studies gathered here explore this dynamic through the complex interactions of state fragility, self-help and self-organization in Nigeria. Nigeria stands as a particularly interesting case as its multifaceted associational life extends far beyond civil society organizations, CSOs and non-governmental organizations, NGOs, as this volume reveals. There is a third sector of Nigerian society encompassing everything from community self-help programs to ethno-religious affiliations to militias. Some of these formations have narrow pragmatic aims while others have an explicit socio-cultural or political agenda. Most can be understood as compensating for the state's failure to deliver services and maintain regulatory frameworks. By examining the emergence of broader forms of civil society, this volume considers their successes while also assessing their costs and Africans in Global Migration John A. Arthur, Joseph Takougang, Thomas Owusu, 2012-08-31 Four overarching themes underscore the essays in this book These are the creation of African diaspora community and institutional structures the structured and shared relationships among African immigrants host and homeland societies the construction and negotiation of diaspora spaces and domains racial ethnic class consciousness including identity politics and finally African migrant economic integration occupational and labor force roles and statuses and impact on host societies Each of the thematic themes has been chosen with one specific goal in mind to depict and represent the critical components in the reconstitution of the African diaspora in international migration We contextualized the themes in the African diaspora as a dynamic process involving what Paul Zeleza called the diasporization of African immigrant settlement communities in global transnational spaces These themes also reflect the diversities inherent in the diaspora communities and call attention to the fluid and dynamic boundaries within which Africans create diffuse and engage host and home societies In this context the themes outlined in this book embody the diaspora tapestries woven by the immigrants to center African social and cultural forms in their host societies and communities Collectively the themes represent pathways for the elucidation of understanding African immigrant territorialization Our purpose is to map out and identify the sources and sites for the contestations of the myriad of cultural manifestations of the new African diaspora and its depictions within the totality of the shared meanings and appropriations of the essences of African ness or African blackness The vulnerabilities struggles threats internal or external to the immigrant community and opportunities emanating from the diasporic relationships that these immigrants create are accentuated within the nexus of African global migrations We view the African diaspora in terms of spatial and geographic constructions and propagations of African cultural identities and institutional forms in global domains whose boundaries are not static but rather dynamic complex and multidimensional Simply stated we approach the African diaspora from a perspective that incorporates the historical as well as contemporary postmodern constructions of the Africa s dispersed communities and their associated transnational identity forms
