Bertha & Fran , 1997 Hurricanes Bertha and Fran Assessment United States. Federal Emergency Management Agency. Region IV., United States. Army. Corps of Engineers. Charleston District, 1998 Hurricane Bertha United States. National Weather Service, 1997 Hurricane Bertha was an early season Category 2 storm when it made landfall on the coast of North Carolina on July 12 1996 Twelve deaths have been directly attributed to Bertha with United States damages estimated at 270 million Extensive evacuations of vulnerable areas occurred in advance of Bertha including 250 000 in North Carolina 80 000 in South Carolina and 20 000 in Georgia Revenue losses to the tourist industry approached 40 million Bertha closely paralleled the southeast U S coast at a distance from 170 to 200 miles This created multiple state involvement with almost all of the U S east coast involved with some watch or warning The NHC s track forecast was very accurate with average forecast track errors 15 percent lower than the 10 year official track averages Where the storm came ashore in North Carolina watches and warnings were posted 65 hours and 47 hours before landfall respectively which far exceeds the NHC stated goals of 36 and 24 hours Nevertheless the coordination between NHC and emergency managers regarding the issuances of watches and warnings was frustrated by efforts to reconcile the meteorology of the event with state and local response requirements Bertha s anticipated turn from a northwest direction to north northwest as it approached the southeast coast was agonizingly slow This put a great deal of pressure on the elected officials and Emergency Management Centers EMCs of Florida South Carolina and North Carolina concerning what actions to take This was also the first time the HLT had been fully deployed at the NHC A Service Assessment Team was dispatched to the NHC as well as the impacted states to investigate these issues and to evaluate the HLT The Executive Summary Hurricane Bertha: July 5-14, 1996 Department of Commerce. National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.
