Saving Our Children From Poverty:

Saving Our Children From Poverty Barbara R. Bergmann, 1996-10-24 More than one in five American children live below the poverty line a proportion that exceeds that of any other advanced nation Although large numbers of Western European children live with single or unemployed parents or belong to disadvantaged minorities they are better shielded from severe deprivation by carefully designed public assistance programs Saving Our Children from Poverty describes one of the most successful European systems of assistance for families that of France and through comparison with American programs offers a valuable guide to improving our own safety net for children and reforming our dysfunctional welfare system Saving Our Children from Poverty details the array of benefits available to both high and low income families in France Government run nursery schools provide free high quality care for almost all children between the ages of three and six Children also receive guaranteed medical care under a national health insurance plan The French system offers married couples most of the same benefits as single parents and creates strong incentives to seek and hold jobs rather than remain on welfare A French single mother who chooses to work still receives substantial income supplements housing assistance subsidized health care and access to public child care facilities In stark contrast her American counterpart loses most of her cash benefits if she takes a job and receives no government assistance with child care Because American policies focus disproportionately on aiding the poorest non working families parents forced to rely on low wage jobs are frequently left without the resources to provide their children with an adequate standard of living As the public debate on welfare reform continues to rage ever more American children fall into poverty Why does the nation remain so unresponsive to their plight Saving Our Children from Poverty probes the American aversion to national assistance programs citing the negative attitudes that have seeped into the current political discourse A lack of faith in the federal government's administrative abilities has bolstered a trend toward decentralization of programs as well as a growing resistance to taxation Racial antipathies and a belief that financial support encourages irresponsibility further undermine the development of programs for those in need Saving Our Children from Poverty illustrates what a nation no wealthier than ours can realistically accomplish and afford and concludes with a viable blueprint for successfully applying aspects of France's system to the United States Save Our Children Charles Paul Jeffries, 2017-06-07 Guide for parents and teachers to help children who suffer from traumatic events

Who Cares for our Children? Valerie Polakow, 2007 Valerie Polakow spent a year traveling around the country listening to low income women from diverse backgrounds tell their stories of struggle resilience distress and occasional success as they encountered ongoing child care crises The resulting work is both a compelling account of the lived realities of the child care crisis and an incisive critique of public policy that points to the United States as an outlier in the international community Drawing on historical and international perspectives Polakow creates a groundbreaking analysis of child care as a human right persuasively arguing for a universal child care system Who Cares for Our Children is one of the most disturbing books I have read in a long time It should have a major impact on debates over poverty and social policy From the Foreword by Barbara Ehrenreich author of Nickel and Dimed In this beautifully written and provocative volume Polakow deftly steps aside and lets real mothers struggling against the odds to keep their families safe and sound speak for themselves about what they need This book delivers a timely message Child care should be viewed as a human right Martha F Davis Northeastern University School of Law A collection of moving and often chilling personal narratives Who Cares for Our Children is a powerful and well documented analysis of the worlds of low income families Beth Blue Swadener Arizona State University Thoroughly researched and grounded in a heartfelt sympathy for the struggles of families that face such painful choices and dilemmas in meeting the needs of their children James Garbarino Loyola University Chicago

Who Will Save Our Children? Claudette P. J. Crawford-Brown, 1999 An overview of the key issues facing the Jamaican child of the nineties Crawford Brown confronts the problems of Jamaican children with a view to sensitizing professionals and the public to these problems This work provides a basis for analysing some of these problems and seeks to examine their programmatic and policy implications particularly in relation to the improvement of systems of social service delivery Who Will Save Our Children is appropriate for professionals working with children particularly teachers social workers and guidance counsellors but it is also geared towards parents to help them understand their own situations and responses in terms of Jamaican society

Wasting America's Future Marian Wright Edelman, 1994-10-31 The Health and Human Services poverty line for a three person family in America is 11 800 in annual income One in every five American children is growing up in poverty What does child poverty mean for the economic and societal future of our country The Children's Defense Fund widely considered the most powerful force for children in America has assembled expert and ground breaking information on how poverty affects health childhood deaths low birth weight and injury on the insidious connections between low family income and learning disabilities on links between poverty abuse and neglect and self esteem and much more Wasting America's Future is the crucial citizen's handbook as we continue the national debate on welfare reform

Saving Our Kids Marc Gorelick, MD, 2025-04-10 If someone were to ask you what the leading cause of death is among American children today what would you say Cancer Car accidents Obesity The answer is firearms Guns kill more children in our country than anything else It's a shocking statistic no matter your politics So how do we solve it Where can we find common ground on one of the most divisive issues in America The solution according to Dr Gorelick lies in public health In Saving Our Kids An ER Doc's Common Sense Solution to the Gun Crisis Dr Gorelick unfurls a roadmap that everyone from pediatricians to the general public can follow The key is taking a fresh look at the issue of guns through the lens of public health and leading the debate away from partisanship and toward reasonable policies that will save children's lives As a father pediatrician and leader of one of the largest independent pediatric health systems in the United States Dr Gorelick has viewed the issue of gun violence up close from many angles for many years All that experience has brought him to one conclusion we can solve this crisis if we prioritize our children s health Save Our Youth United States. Beyond Medicine Paul V. Dutton, 2021-04-15 In Beyond Medicine Paul V Dutton provides a penetrating historical analysis of why countless studies show that Americans are far less healthy than their European counterparts Dutton argues that Europeans are healthier than Americans because beginning in the late nineteenth century European nations began construction of health systems that focused not only on medical care but the broad social determinants of health where and how we live work play and age European leaders also created social safety nets that became integral to national economic policy In contrast US leaders often viewed investments to improve the social determinants of health and safety net programs as a competing priority to economic growth Beyond Medicine compares the US to three European social democracies France Germany and Sweden in order to explain how in differing ways each protects the health of infants and children working age adults and the elderly Unlike most comparative health system analyses Dutton draws on history to find answers to our most nettlesome health policy questions
