

Nurturing Together

Supporting caregivers during their children's early years

Caregivers play a crucial role in children's healthy development

The nurturing relationships that parents and other caregivers form with young children are crucial to a child's development, laying a solid foundation for long-term physical and mental health. These bonds are especially important for helping children in crisis-affected settings build resilience in the face of adversity. Evidence shows that a caring, nurturing relationship with an adult can be an important protective factor for these children.

Programs designed specifically for parents and other caregivers can support them in playing this critical role—providing information and guidance on how to interact and play in healthy and stimulating ways. Evidence shows that these programs have an effect, improving children's cognitive, motor, language, and socioemotional development. Programs that support caregivers in forming nurturing relationships with their children can also mitigate some of the negative effects of stress and trauma early in life. And benefits extend beyond children: research shows that early childhood development programs aimed at supporting caregivers can improve caregivers' own mental health as well, and caregivers often report that playing with their children is an important factor in their own happiness.
