In It for the Long Run Scott Ludwig, Vanessa Stroud, 2012-09 Multiple races of marathon distance or greater in a month or perhaps in a weekend Several unsupported runs of 50 and 100 miles through the mountains and forests several times a year Have you ever considered running through a desert across a frozen tundra or over multiple mountain ranges Why not run for three days straight to see how many miles you can accrue Welcome to a place where no locale is too inhospitable and no distance impossible Welcome to the Darkside The Darkside Running Club established in 2002 is a place where runners meet to express their love for distance running and camaraderie by spending countless hours and miles committed to doing what they enjoy most They share a singular focus towards achieving goals far off in the distance both literally and figuratively With their dedication and commitment you may believe the Darksider to be a professional athlete or perhaps an Olympian But you would be wrong they are simply ordinary people doing extraordinary things in the sport they love running Highly competitive while never taking themselves too seriously they strive to shave off minutes or perhaps hours while adding a mile or two or twenty while pushing their limits further and further The impossible becomes possible dreams become reality They won't take no for an answer as they persevere to move beyond physical and emotional discomfort to finish what they started Excuses don't exist Their passion is contagious So reader be warned they're in it for the long run

Education Policy in Developing Countries Paul Glewwe, 2024-05-31 Almost any economist will agree that education plays a key role in determining a country's economic growth and standard of living but what we know about education policy in developing countries is remarkably incomplete and scattered over decades and across publications Education Policy in Developing Countries rights this wrong taking stock of twenty years of research to assess what we actually know and what we still need to learn about effective education policy in the places that need it the most Surveying many aspects of education from administrative structures to the availability of health care to parent and student incentives the contributors synthesize an impressive diversity of data paying special attention to the gross imbalances in educational achievement that still exist between developed and developing countries They draw out clear implications for governmental policy at a variety of levels conscious of economic realities such as budget constraints and point to crucial areas where future research is needed Offering a wealth of insights into one of the best investments a nation can make Education Policy in global food security Glauber, Joseph W., Laborde Debucquet, David, 2023-07-10 When Russia invaded Ukraine in February 2022 sparking fears of a global food crisis IFPRI responded rapidly to the need for information and policy advice to address the crisis From the first moments of the conflict a new IFPRI blog series provided critical information and insights into the impacts on food security caused by rising food fertilizer and fuel prices and trade disruptions for vulnerable countries and regions This book is a compilation of those blog posts which include analysis of trade flows tracking of food prices and policy responses and results of impact modeling Together they provide an overview of how the crisis has progressed how the international community and individual countries responded with efforts to ensure food security and what we are learning about the best ways to ensure food security in the aftermath of a major shock to global food systems Freedom from Want George Kent, 2005-06-02 There is literally a world of difference between the statements Everyone should have adequate food and Everyone has the right to adequate food In George Kent's view the lofty rhetoric of the first statement will not be fulfilled until we take the second statement seriously Kent sees hunger as a deeply political problem Too many people do not have adequate control over local resources and cannot create the circumstances that would allow them to do meaningful productive work and provide for themselves The human right to an adequate livelihood including the human right to adequate food needs to be implemented worldwide in a systematic way Freedom from Want makes it clear that feeding people will not solve the problem of hunger for feeding programs can only be a short term treatment of a symptom not a cure The real solution lies in empowering the poor Governments in particular must ensure that their people face enabling conditions that allow citizens to provide for themselves In a wider sense Kent brings an understanding of human rights as a universal system applicable to all nations on a global scale If as Kent argues everyone has a human right to adequate food it follows that those who can empower the poor have a duty to see that right implemented and the obligation to be held morally and legally accountable for seeing that that right is realized for everyone everywhere Review of Child Nutrition

The Russia-Ukraine conflict and

Sustainable Plant Nutrition and Soil Carbon Sequestration Sheikh Adil Edrisi, Pradeep Kumar Dubey, Ch. Srinivasa Rao, Himlal Baral, Rajiv Kumar Chaturvedi, Purushothaman Chirakkuzhyil Abhilash, 2024-11-11 Terrestrial plant systems are an integral part of Earth's land resources. Resources are mutually connected via the nutrient exchange phenomena. Thus, plant nutrition is crucial in managing soil fertility and land productivity. Soil organic carbon is one of the critical indicators for assessing the viability of land and hence soil carbon sequestration, which is a burgeoning issue regarding changing climatic conditions. In this context, this book provides an essential linkage between sustainable plant nutrition and soil carbon sequestration and their management strategies that lead to multidimensional benefits for environmental sustainability. The primary purpose of this book is to explore the nexus between carbon sequestration and plant growth, its role in maintaining ecosystem services and modeling aspects of soil carbon and nutrient dynamics. Moreover, it aims to address the growing challenges of ecological perturbations, unraveling the potential of degraded lands for food, fuel, and nutritional security, and accounting for meeting various UN SDGs.

Cost-Benefit Analysis of the African Risk Capacity Facility Daniel J. Clarke, Ruth Vargas Hill, 2013-11-01 Governments play a key role in supporting populations affected by natural disasters, including rebuilding infrastructure to ensure continued services and scaling up public safety nets to prevent widespread hunger and poverty. However, the traditional approach of limiting greater spending to the aftermath of a disaster has many drawbacks. External support from bilateral or multilateral donors can be slow and unreliable. Private sector reinsurance can be prohibitively expensive. And reallocating budgets toward recovery and reconstruction is typically a slow process that can even hurt long-term development by drawing resources away from effective programs. Some countries are trying to mitigate this liability by banding together and creating sovereign catastrophe risk pools that allow governments to coordinate with one another to insure their uncertain fiscal liabilities at lower cost. Countries contribute to the pool, which then provides payments if an insured natural disaster strikes. The African Risk Capacity (ARC) has been proposed as a pan-Africa drought risk pool to insure against drought risk in Africa south of the Sahara. If fully operationalized, the ARC will mark a major change in how donors fund emergency support to countries in Africa during times of need. In this paper, we undertake a cost-benefit analysis of the ARC pool and discuss how lessons can inform the design of the ARC.
