Service Industries And Asia Pacific Cities:

Service Industries and Asia Pacific Cities Peter W. Daniels, Kong Chong Ho, Thomas A. Hutton, Tom Hutton, 2005-04

During the second half of the twentieth century development in the Asia Pacific region has been dominated by industrialization. However, at the beginning of the twenty-first century, services in particular finance, information, and creative services have become deeply embedded in the processes of urban growth. In Asia Pacific, the rise of service industries has led to national modernization programmes and globalization strategies. Services are also driving change in the internal form of city regions and are being actively deployed as instruments of metropolitan reconfiguration and land use changes. These changes have created problems such as social polarization and the displacement of traditional industries and residential districts. Also, there are tensions between local and global processes in the development of service industries and between the imperatives of competitive advantage and sustainable development. Service Industries and Asia Pacific Cities brings together a multi-disciplinary team of experts to explore and illustrate the theoretical, conceptual, and practical issues arising from the transformation of Asia Pacific cities by service industries. The Handbook of Service Industries J. R. Bryson, P. W. Daniels, 2007-01-01

It contains an impressive array of important and useful material that should be familiar to anyone interested in economic growth and change. The potential value to be gained from these collected works is great. James E. Pratt, Growth and Change. Service activities are now acknowledged as key players in economic development, societal change, and public policy worldwide. This exciting Handbook not only contributes to ongoing conceptual debates about the nature of service-led economies and societies; it also pushes back the frontiers of current critical thinking about the role of service activities in urban and regional development and the important research agendas that remain to be addressed. Drawing on both theory and case studies, the contributors are international experts who have written original and stimulating chapters from a number of different disciplinary perspectives. Each chapter seeks to raise awareness of and to provoke debates about the opportunities and challenges presented by the shift to service employment. Providing a truly interdisciplinary analysis, The Handbook of Service Industries will be invaluable to scholars specializing in services research, as well as students and researchers in the areas of economics, geography, business, and management, sociology, public policy, and planning. The policy-making community will also find the Handbook a relevant and useful resource. Service Industries and Asia-Pacific

Producer Services in China Anthony Yeh, Fiona Yang, 2013-02-11 In the past three decades China has experienced an unprecedented pace of economic and urban development Its economy is now transforming from one based on manufacturing industries towards the producer services with the importance of these services in the national and regional economy being recognized by economists and policy makers alike With growing demand and policy support producer services are expected to expand rapidly leading to a new wave of economic and urban development in China This groundbreaking volume is one of the first to address questions related to the development of these services in China The contributions explore a wide range of associated topics including the characteristics of the growth of producer services and how this is related to China's economic and urban transition the distribution of these services amongst Chinese cities as well as drawing comparison between producer service development in China and Western counterparts This volume also discusses the dynamics of the development of these services in China and how the political economic embeddedness of China has shaped the development of producer services Finally the consequences of this growth and how the economy and urban space have change in response is explored as well as the challenges Chinese cities face in moving towards a service economy and how this can inform future public policies This volume addresses the pressing need to understand the economic and urban changes in post industrial China to allow appropriate strategies and policies to be formulated to facilitate future development in China The text is rich with statistical data and diagrams providing original contributions and a cutting edge overview This timely publication will be of interest to upper level undergraduates postgraduates and researchers interested in China Urban Studies and Economic Development     Capital Cities in Asia-Pacific Kong-Chong Ho, Xinhuan Xiao, 2006     Producer Services in Cities of the Asia Pacific Economic Region Morshidi Sirat, Abdul Fatah Che Hamat, Nooriah Yusof, 2001 Much attention has been given recently to the role and contribution of producer services in advanced economies In most of these economies producer services account for no less than 50 percent of employment in metropolitan areas Evidently the increase in the share of producer services in all employment has been well documented for Europe and for North America In so far as the Asia Pacific economic region is concerned there is a similar pattern of growth and development although this is only based on employment in finance insurance real estate and business services Producer services represent one of the key new growth sectors but in the context of the Asia Pacific economic region empirical work about how producer services are participating in and shaping the process of development remains to be undertaken In the case of many developing countries in the Asia Pacific economic region grouping producer services are heavily represented in urban and metropolitan areas which are more developed and functionally diverse. However the role and contribution of producer services in the highest of the urban hierarchy in the developing countries of the region has not been examined adequately. The study reported in this book is also based on various debates concerning the interurban location of producer service activities. The overwhelming importance of face to face contact in both the acquisition of inputs and the delivery of the product to clients results in agglomeration economies maximizing and transaction cost minimizing in corporate activity complexes traditionally located in the CBD.

National Directory of Scholars, 2007      Environment & Planning, 2012      Dialogues in Urban and Regional Planning
Bruce Stiftel, Vanessa Watson, Henri Acselrad, 2007. Dialogues in Urban and Regional Planning offers a new selection of the best urban planning scholarship from each of the world's planning school associations. The award winning papers presented illustrate the concerns and the discourse of planning scholarship communities and provide a glimpse into planning theory and practice by planning academics around the world. All those with an interest in urban and regional planning will find this collection valuable in opening new avenues for research and debate. This book is published in association with the Global Planning Education Association Network GPEAN and the nine planning school associations it represents who have selected these papers based on regional competitions.      Globalization and the Sustainability of Cities in the Asia Pacific Region
Fu-chen Lo, Peter Marcotullio, 2001. This collection of essays examines the sustainability concerns surrounding social and environmental conditions in the major cities of the Asia Pacific region. Issues considered include globalisation, foreign direct investment, international migration and the changing pattern of cities. The second part of the book focuses on particular types of cities with case studies: post industrial capital exporting cities such as Tokyo and Seoul; borderless cities such as Hong Kong and Singapore; industrial cities such as Shanghai and Bangkok; and amenity cities such as Sydney.      The City in Southeast Asia
Peter J. Rimmer, Howard W. Dick, 2009-07-31. The City in Southeast Asia explores ways of moving beyond outmoded paradigms of the Third World City. It does this by examining urban patterns: the global cities of Singapore, Hong Kong and Kuala Lumpur; the national cities of Bangkok, Jakarta and Manila; and the second cities of Chiang Mai, Surabaya, Cebu and Penang. Book cover      Economic Development and Inequality in China
Hong Yu, 2011. The conventional belief that all regions have equally benefited from China's remarkable development over the last three decades is subjected to criticism in this book as Hong Yu systematically analyses the issue of regional inequality during the post 1978 period using the case of Guangdong. Guangdong is one of the key industrial centres and economic powerhouses in China and as a pioneer province instigating economic reform as China opened up to the world it offers an ideal focus upon which to question and enrich the Western theories of economic geography and regional disparity. Based on field research, analysis of geographic characteristics and regression models, this book illustrates how Guangdong's impressive development record has been marred by its rising regional disparity, investigates the main causes of this disparity and draws conclusions regarding the lessons China can learn from it. Economic Development and Inequality in China will be of interest to students and scholars of Chinese economics Chinese regional studies economic geography and China Studies Hong Yu is a Visiting Research Fellow at the National University of Singapore His research interests lie in the field of regional economy He is the author of a chapter on China's two delta regions in the book China and The Global Economic Crisis Globalized Freight Transport Thomas R. Leinbach, Cristina Capineri, 2007 Globalisation is a fashionable issue this collection of papers explores the impact on freight transport of the changing world economy Emerging World Cities in Pacific Asia Chinese University of Hong Kong, 1996 The book provides a comprehensive appraisal of the interplay between global structural adjustments and the changing role and configuration of Asia's world cities at the close of the twentieth century with emphasis on the functional importance and complexity of world cities in the global and regional economies The Economic Role of Cities Barbara Lepani, 1995 New Cities of the Pacific Rim Edward James Blakely, Robert John Stimson, 1992 Urbanization in China Yan Song, Chengri Ding, 2007 Addressing the most pressing issues of urbanization in China urban planning land policy rural to urban migration and financing this book enhances our understanding of the challenges at hand and helps policy makers and urban planners make decisions that are economically sound environmentally desirable and politically feasible Bibliographic Index, 2001 New Regional Development Paradigms: Globalization and the new regional development Asfaw Kumssa, T. G. McGee, 2001 The era of globalization is creating profound changes in global relationships changes that are manifest at international regional national and sub national levels making traditional regional development policy obsolete and irrelevant Traditional policy needs to be redefined and reconstructed so it can capture and articulate emerging regional trends and issues The first of four volumes based mainly on Global Forum on Regional Development Policy organized by the United Nations Centre for Regional Development in Nagoya Japan this book presents a broad theoretical and trend analysis of globalization and its effects on the theory and practice of regional development The book lays out the major components that merit consideration if there is to be new regional planning in this millennium While contributors to the volume do not agree on the effects of globalization on economic growth there is a consensus in the volume that globalization presents a challenge to conventional development theories The challenge for regional planners is to examine the impact and implications of recent structural changes on regional development planning and come up with viable and pragmatic regional development strategies This volume begins to meet that challenge by laying out the major components that merit consideration The following volumes will present detailed case studies of current regional planning practices focusing largely on developing countries Advanced Business Services in Southeast Asia Larissa Ruth Muller, 2003
