Fake, Fact, and Fantasy Maire Messenger Davies, 2013-11-05 Based on a study examining the meaning of the term media literacy in children this volume concentrates on audiovisual narratives of television and film and their effects It closely examines children's concepts of real and unreal and how they learn to make distinctions between the two It also explores the idea that children are protected from the harmful effects of violence on television by the knowledge that what they see is not real This volume is unique in its use of children's own words to explore their awareness of the submerged conventions of television genres of their functions and effects of their relationship to the real world and of how this awareness varies with age and other factors Based on detailed questionnaire data and conversations with 6 to 11 year old children carried out with the support of a fellowship at the Annenberg School for Communication University of Pennsylvania the book eloquently demonstrates how children use their knowledge of real life of literature and of art in intelligently evaluating the relationship between television s formats and the real world in which they live      Comprehensive
