Classifying Drinking Water Contaminants for

Regulatory Consideration National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Environmental Studies and Toxicology, Water Science and Technology Board, Committee on Drinking Water Contaminants, 2001-09-01 Americans drink many gallons of tap water every day but many of them question the safety of tap water every day as well. In fact, devices have been created to filter tap water directly before reaching cups. It's true; however, that the provision and management of safe drinking water throughout the United States have seen triumphs in public health since the beginning of the 20th century. Although advances in water treatment, source water protection efforts, and the presence of local, state, and federal regulatory protection have developed over the years, water in the United States still contains chemical, microbiological, and other types of contaminants at detectable and at times harmful levels. This, in addition to the growth of microbial pathogens that can resist traditional water treatment practices, has led to the question: Where and how should the U.S. government focus its attention and limited resources to ensure safe drinking water supplies for the future? To deal with these issues, the Safe Drinking Water Act (SDWA) Amendments of 1996 included a request that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) publish a list of unregulated chemical and microbial contaminants and contaminant groups every five years that are or could pose risks in the drinking water of public water systems. The first list, called the Drinking Water Contaminant Candidate List (CCL), was published in March 1998. The main function of the CCL is to provide the basis for deciding whether to regulate at least five new contaminants from the CCL every five years. However, since additional research and monitoring need to be conducted for most of the contaminants on the 1998 CCL, the list is also used to prioritize these related activities. Classifying Drinking Water Contaminants for Regulatory Consideration is the third report by the Committee on Drinking Water Contaminants with the purpose of providing advice regarding the setting of priorities among drinking water contaminants in order to identify those contaminants that pose the greatest threats to public health. The committee is comprised of 14 volunteer experts in water treatment, engineering, toxicology, public health, epidemiology, water and analytical chemistry, risk assessment, risk communication, public water system operations, and microbiology and is jointly overseen by the National Research Council's NRC's Water Science and Technology Board and Board on Environmental Studies and Toxicology. In this report, the committee needed to readdress its second report as well as explore the feasibility of developing and using mechanisms for identifying emerging microbial pathogens for research and regulatory activities. The promotion of public health remains the guiding principle of the committee's recommendations and conclusions in this report.

Hospital-Based Health Technology Assessment Laura Sampietro-Colom,Janet Martin,2017-01-23 A timely work describing how localized hospital based health technology assessment HB HTA complements general arms length HTA agency efforts and what has been the collective global impact of HB HTA across the globe While HB HTA has gained significant momentum over the past few years expertise in the field and information on the operation and organization of HB HTA has been scattered This book serves to bring this information together to inform those who are currently working in the field of HTA at the hospital regional national or global level In addition this book is intended for decision makers and policy makers with a stake in determining the uptake and decommissioning of new and established technologies in the hospital setting HTA has traditionally been performed at the National Regional level by HTA Agencies typically linked to governments Yet hospitals are the main entry door for most health technologies HTs Hospital decision makers must undertake multiple high stakes investment and disinvestment decisions annually for innovative HTs usually without adequate information Despite the existence of arms length HTA Agencies inadequate information is available to hospital decision makers either because relevant HTA reports are not yet released at the time of entry of new technologies to the field or because even when the report exists the information contained is insufficient to clarify the contextualized informational needs of hospital decision makers Therefore there has recently been a rising trend toward hospital based HTA units and programs These units programs complement the work of National Regional HTA Agencies by providing the key and relevant evidence needed by hospital decision makers in their specific hospital context and within required decision making timelines The emergence of HB HTA is creating a comprehensive HTA ecosystem across health care levels which creates better bridges for knowledge translation through relevance and timeliness Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.),1993 First multi year cumulation covers six years 1965 70
