Producing the Acceptable Sex Worker Gwyn Easterbrook-Smith,2022-02-25 Producing the Acceptable Sex Worker considers how sex work is produced in news media narratives a site where much of the general public draws its understanding of the industry in the absence of lived interaction with it Taking New Zealand as a case study this book considers an emerging discourse of acceptability for some sex workers primarily those who do low volume indoor work Their acceptability is established in comparison with other kinds of sex workers resulting in a redistribution but not a reduction of stigma The conditions attached to acceptability reflect persistent anxieties about sex work workers who are acceptable must give the impression that the sexual labour of the job is enjoyable and virtually indistinguishable from their personal life eliding the work involved Unacceptable workers have existing marginalisations magnified by their association with the industry with migrant sex workers produced as devious or exploited and transgender women s involvement with the industry used to deny them the right to public space The conditions attached to acceptability reveal how neoliberal discourses of choice desire authenticity and personal responsibility inform the formation of sex work in the public eye quantitative analyses of topics pertaining to gay men and lesbians that have previously been relatively unexamined or assessed mainly through qualitative studies They explore where gay men and lesbians live why they choose those residences income inequality occupations dimensions of family attachments relationship commitments and family structures The census data allows the authors to provide a more detailed representation of many of the essential features in the lives of gay men and lesbians compared to those of married and cohabiting heterosexuals In certain cases the data and analyses reinforce current stereotypes while in other cases they challenge preexisting beliefs Ultimately this book provides a foundation for future research policy law and understanding regarding gay men and lesbians Professional Sexual Ethics Patricia Beattie
