resurrected person and their mortal flesh was also a key point of discussion especially in regards to sexual desires body parts and practices Early Christians struggled to articulate how and why these bodily features related to the imagined resurrected self The problems posed by the resurrection thus provoked theological analysis of the mortal body sexual desire and gender Resurrecting Parts is the first study to examine the place of gender and sexuality in early Christian debates on the nature of resurrection investigating how the resurrected body has been interpreted by writers of this period in order to address the nature of sexuality and sexual difference In particular Petrey considers the instability of early Christian attempts to separate maleness and femaleness Bodily parts commonly signified sexual difference yet it was widely thought that future resurrected bodies would not experience desire or reproduction In the absence of sexuality this insistence on difference became difficult to maintain To achieve a common shared identity and status for the resurrected body that nevertheless preserved sexual difference treatises on the resurrection found it necessary to explain how and in what way these parts would be transformed in the resurrection shedding all associations with sexual desires acts and reproduction Exploring a range of early Christian sources from the Greek and Latin fathers to the authors of the Nag Hammadi writings Resurrecting Parts is a fascinating resource for scholars interested in gender and sexuality in classical antiquity early Christianity asceticism and of course the resurrection and the body
