Nurturing The Nation The Family Politics Of Modernizing Colonizing And Liberating Egypt 1805 1923:

Nurturing the Nation Lisa Pollard, 2005-01-31 Publisher Description Histories of the Jews of Egypt Dario Miccoli, 2015-03-24 Up until the advent of Nasser and the 1956 War a thriving and diverse Jewry lived in Egypt mainly in the two cities of Alexandria and Cairo heavily influencing the social and cultural history of the country Histories of the Jews of Egypt argues that this Jewish diaspora should be viewed as an imagined bourgeoisie It demonstrates how from the late nineteenth century up to the 1950s a resilient bourgeois imaginary developed and influenced the lives of Egyptian Jews both in the public arena in institutions such as the school and in the home From the schools of the Alliance Isra lite Universelle and the Cairo lyc e fran ais to Alexandrian marriage contracts and interwar Zionist newspapers this book explains how this imaginary was characterised by a great capacity to adapt to the evolutions of late nineteenth and early twentieth century Egypt but later deteriorated alongside increasingly strong Arab nationalism and the political upheavals that the country experienced from the 1940s onwards Offering a novel perspective on the history of modern Egypt and its Jews and unravelling too often forgotten episodes and personalities which contributed to the making of an incredibly diverse and lively Jewish diaspora at the crossroads of Europe and the Middle East this book is of interest to scholars of Modern Egypt Jewish History and of Mediterranean History Arab Family Studies Suad Joseph, 2018-07-10 Family remains the most powerful social idiom and one of the most powerful social structures throughout the Arab world To engender love of nation among its citizens national movements portray the nation as a family To motivate loyalty political leaders frame themselves as fathers mothers brothers or sisters to their clients parties or the citizenry To stimulate production economic actors evoke the sense of duty and mutual commitment of family obligation To sanctify their edicts clerics wrap religion in the moralities of family and family in the moralities of religion Social and political movements from the most secular to the most religious pull on the tender strings of family love to recruit and bind their members to each other To call someone family is to offer them almost the highest possible intimacy loyalty rights reciprocities and dignity In recognizing the significance of the concept of family this state of the art literature review captures the major theories methods and case studies carried out on Arab families over the past century The book offers a country by country critical assessment of the available scholarship on Arab families Sixteen chapters focus on specific countries or groups of countries seven chapters offer examinations of the literature on key topical issues Joseph s volume provides an indispensable resource to researchers and students and advances Arab family studies as a critical independent field of scholarship Gender and the Making of Modern Medicine in Colonial Egypt Hibba Abugideiri, 2016-04-15 Gender and the Making of Modern Medicine in Colonial Egypt investigates the use of medicine as a tool of empire to serve the state building process in Egypt by the British colonial administration It argues that the colonial state effectively transformed Egyptian medical practice and medical knowledge in ways that were decidedly gendered On the one hand women medical professionals who had once trained as doctresses hakimas were now restricted in their medical training and therefore saw their social status decline despite colonial modernity's promise of progress. On the other hand, the introduction of colonial medicine gendered Egyptian medicine in ways that privileged men and masculinity. Far from being totalized colonial subjects, Egyptian doctors paradoxically reappropriated aspects of Victorian science to forge an anticolonial nationalist discourse premised on the Egyptian woman as mother of the nation. By relegating Egyptian women, whether as midwives or housewives, to maternal roles in the home, colonial medicine was determinative in diminishing what control women formerly exercised over their profession, homes, and bodies through its medical dictates to care for others. By interrogating how colonial medicine was constituted, Hibba Abugideiri reveals how the rise of the modern state configured the social formation of native elites in ways directly tied to the formation of modern gender identities and gender inequalities in colonial Egypt.

Beyond the Exotic Amira El-Azhary Sonbol, 2021-02-15. Most research has accepted stereotypical images of Muslim women, treating their outward manifestations such as veiling as passive and oppressive. Muslim women have been depicted as different and, by exoticizing and orientalizing them, or Islamic society in general, they have been dealt with outside of general women's history and regarded as having little to contribute to the writing of world history or to the life of their sisters worldwide. By approaching widely used sources with different questions and methodologies and by using new or little used material with much primary research, this book redresses these deficiencies. Scholars revisit and reevaluate scripture and scriptural interpretation, church records involving non-Muslim women of the Arab world, archival court records dating from the present back to the Ottoman period, and the oral and material culture and its written record, including oral history, textbooks, Sufi practices, and the politics of dress. By deconstructing the past, these scholars offer fresh perspectives on women's roles and aspirations in Middle East societies.

Tunisia's Modern Woman Amy Aisen Kallander, 2021-06-03. Claims over women's liberation vocalized by Tunisia's first president, Habib Bourguiba, began with legal reforms related to family law in 1956. In this book, Amy Aisen Kallander uses this political appropriation of women's rights to look at the importance of women to post-colonial state building projects in Tunisia and how this relates to other state feminist projects across the Middle East and during the Cold War. Here we see how the notion of modern womanhood was central to a range of issues from economic development via family planning to intellectual life and the growth of Tunisian academia. Looking at political discourse, the women's press, fashion, and ideas about love, the book traces how this concept was reformulated by women through transnational feminist organizing and in the press in ways that proposed alternatives to the dominant constructions of state feminism.

The Career and Communities of Zaynab Fawwaz Marilyn Booth, 2021. A study of the career and writings of Zaynab Fawwaz (c. 1860–1914), an early feminist thinker and writer in Egypt. It focuses on her newspaper essays, novels, poetry, and her play, which was the first to be published by a female author in Arabic.

Domestic Nationalism Chiara Formichi, 2025-10-28. Chiara Formichi argues that Muslim women in Java and Sumatra from the late 1910s to the 1950s were central to Indonesia's progress as guardians and promoters of health and piety through gendered activities of care work.

While sidelined in the Dutch colonial project of hygienic modernity women's labor of social reproduction became increasingly visible. Women from all walks of life were called upon to fulfill domestic and motherly roles for the production and socialization of laborers, soldiers and citizens. The medicalization of cleanliness intersecting with multiple patriarchal orders marginalized women's traditional influence and knowledge. However, leveraging the critical importance of infant care, cleanliness and nutrition, women pushed against the boundaries imposed on them by the colonial and postcolonial state. Largely absent from government archives, their words and acts are evident in vernacular magazines and visual sources drawn from official outreach, news and lifestyle media and advertisements. Women writers rearticulated scientific mothering, nationalist maternalism and Islamic ideals of motherhood to create a public voice through gendered care work. Domestic Nationalism proposes that as the modern Indonesian nation state took shape, capitalizing on the public function of mothering, so did homemaking become a crossroads of national and international approaches to development, blurring nonaligned self-reliance and global capitalist interests.
