Realism In The Novels Of The Harlem Renaissance:

Realism in the Novels of the Harlem Renaissance Theodore O. Francis, 2002 The novelists of the Harlem Renaissance began writing at a point in America's literary history when the romantic tradition was being set aside for the gutsy truth telling of realist literature Modern criticism seems to take the flowery nineteenth century prose found in the works of Chesnutt Dunbar Du Bois and others as an indication that they were writing in the romantic style This is understandable but flawed Almost all of the stories written during the Renaissance contained references to slavery or to Post Reconstructionist violence For that reason few stories stemming from this period and written by African Americans can be said to be romantic

Literary Ambition and the African American Novel Michael Nowlin,2019-11-07 This book shows how African American literature emerged as a world recognized literature less as the product of a seamless tradition of writers signifying upon their ancestors and more the product of three generations of ambitious competitive individuals aiming to be the first great African American writer. It charts a canon of fictional landmarks beginning with The House Behind the Cedars and culminating in the National Book Award Winner Invisible Man and tells the compelling stories of the careers of key African American writers including Charles Chesnutt, James Weldon Johnson, Jean Toomer, Zora Neale Hurston, Richard Wright, and Ralph Ellison. These writers worked within the white dominated commercial Eurocentric literary field to put African American literature on the world literary map while struggling to transcend the cultural expectations attached to their position as Negro authors. Literary Ambition and the African American Novel tells as much about the novels that these writers could not publish as it does about their major achievements.
