Professional Learning in a School-Based Community of Science Teachers Wayne Melville, 2010-01-01 The ubiquitous science department occupies an unusual position in most secondary schools Traditionally they have been part of the organisational structure of schools with administrative responsibilities over room allocations teaching assignments and the management of laboratory equipment These are important roles but they only tell half the story Science teachers are more than members of an organisational structure They are also members of a science education community which is shaped by their shared understanding of science The science department as community also possesses a pivotal if undervalued role in teacher professional learning This book conceptualises professional learning as the engagement of teachers in a virtues based personal reflection and or public discourse around the episteme techne and phronesis in the spaces in between the metaphors of understanding community meanings practice and identity As such it speaks to heads of science departments school administrators and those with an interest in leadership within schools

Talbert, 2001-10-20 American high schools have never been under more pressure to reform student populations are more diverse than ever resources are limited and teachers are expected to teach to high standards for all students While many reformers look for change at the state or district level the authors here argue that the most local contexts schools departments and communities matter the most to how well teachers perform in the classroom and how satisfied they are professionally Their findings based on one of the most extensive research projects ever done on secondary teaching show that departmental cultures play a crucial role in classroom settings and expectations In the same school for example social studies teachers described their students as apathetic and unwilling to work while English teachers described the same students as bright interesting and energetic With wide ranging implications for educational practice and policy this unprecedented look into teacher communities is essential reading for educators administrators and all those concerned with U S High Schools

Hobson,2014-05-01 Globalization has a profound effect on the mission and goals of education worldwide One of its most visible manifestations is the worldwide endorsement of the idea of education for global citizenship which has been enthusiastically supported by national governments politicians and policy makers across different nations Increasingly the educational institutions feel under pressure to respond to globalization forces by preparing students to engage competitively and successfully with this new realm lest their nations be left in the dust What is the role of international schools in implementing the idea of education for global citizenship How do these schools create a culturally unbiased global curriculum when the adopted models have been developed by Western societies and at the very least are replete with Western cultural values traditions and biases This collection of essays attempts to grapple with these complex issues while highlighting that culture and politics closely intertwine with schooling and curriculum as parents administrators teachers and students of different backgrounds and interests negotiate definitions of self and each other to construct knowledge in particular contexts The goal is to examine the complexity of factors that drive the global demand for education for global citizenship and de construct the contested nature of global citizenship by examining how the phenomenon is understood interpreted and modified in different cultural settings The authors provide not only a thick description of their cases but also a critical assessment of various attempts to initiate and implement educational reforms aimed at the development of globally minded citizens in various national settings
