

The image is a reproduction of a painting depicting a 17th-century interior. The room features a large, ornate canopy bed with a patterned valance and a blue interior. In the foreground, a long wooden bench with a balustrade of white urn-shaped balusters spans the width of the room. To the left, a white chest of drawers stands on a wooden stand. The walls are decorated with large landscape paintings. The ceiling is high and features a decorative coffered pattern. The floor is made of dark wood.

The Portrait Bust and French Cultural Politics in the Eighteenth Century Ronit Milano,2015-02-24 In The Portrait Bust and French Cultural Politics in the Eighteenth Century Ronit Milano probes the rich and complex aesthetic and intellectual charge of a remarkably concise art form and explores its role as a powerful agent of epistemological change during one of the most seismic moments in French history The pre Revolutionary portrait bust was inextricably tied to the formation of modern selfhood and to the construction of individual identity during the Enlightenment while positioning both sitters and viewers as part of a collective of individuals who together formed French society In analyzing the contribution of the portrait bust to the construction of interiority and the formulation of new gender roles and political ideals this book touches upon a set of concerns that constitute the very core of our modernity

Traces of Vermeer Jane Jelley,2017-07-21 Johannes Vermeer s luminous paintings are loved and admired around the world yet we do not understand how they were made We see sunlit spaces the glimmer of satin silver and linen we see the softness of a hand on a lute string or letter We recognise the distilled impression of a moment of time and we feel it to be real We might hope for some answers from the experts but they are confounded too Even with the modern technology available they do not know why there is no evidence of any preliminary drawing why there are shifts in focus and why his pictures are unusually blurred Some wonder if he might possibly have used a camera obscura to capture what he saw before him The few traces Vermeer has left behind tell us little there are no letters or diaries and no reports of him at work Jane Jelley has taken a new path in this detective story A painter herself she has worked with the materials of his time the cochineal insect and lapis lazuli the sheep bones soot earth and rust She shows us how painters made their pictures layer by layer she investigates old secrets and hears travellers tales She explores how Vermeer could have used a lens in the creation of his masterpieces The clues were there all along After all this time now we can unlock the studio door and catch a glimpse of Vermeer inside painting light
