Raised among the New England Transcendentalists in Concord and Boston, Ms Alcott grew up among some of the giants of American literature and history, including Emerson and Thoreau. However, her philosopher father, Bronson Alcott, was often unable to financially support his family, and Ms Alcott devoted most of her life to giving her altruistic mother, her father, and her sisters some financial security. During the Civil War, Ms Alcott volunteered to nurse soldiers in Washington, D.C., but she became seriously ill after 6 weeks and never recovered her health, although that didn't stop her from working 14-hour days writing. After the first volume of Little Women was published, editors began soliciting her work and paying her much higher rates. She kept right on working and was able to realize her dream of supporting her family in comfort and assisting others. Published in 1889, a year after her death, Ms Alcott's letters and the journal, supplemented with the editor's comments, form a virtual autobiography which reflects her idealism, integrity, humor, and practicality. Sadly, she had most of the letters she wrote to her family destroyed; she also edited her journal, but the letters from her European trip with her sister were inadvertently saved by her father and are delightful. "I am in the garret with my papers round me and a pile of apples to eat while I write my journal, plan stories, and enjoy the patter of rain on the roof in peace and quiet." April 1855, age 22.

Cheney, 2015-07-13 Excerpt from Louisa May Alcott Her Life, Letters, and Journals Louisa May Alcott is universally recognized as the greatest and most popular story teller for children in her generation. She has known the way to the hearts of young people not only in her own class or even country but in every condition of life and in many foreign lands. Plato says: Beware of those who teach fables to children; and it is impossible to estimate the influence which the popular writer of fiction has over the audience he wins to listen to his tales. The preacher, the teacher, the didactic writer find their audience in hours of strength with critical faculties all alive to question their propositions and refute their arguments. The novelist comes to us in the intervals of recreation and relaxation and by his seductive powers of imagination and sentiment takes possession of the fancy and the heart before judgment and reason are aroused to defend the citadel.
