works     Embroidered Identities 梅云李 Mei-yin Lee 弗洛里安·诺特 Florian Knothe 2013-12-15 This publication accompanies the University Museum and Art Gallery's exhibition of traditional Chinese costumes, baby carriers and silver ornaments drawn from the collection of Mei Yin Lee. Elaborately embroidered costumes and baby carriers, most of which originate with the Miao, Dong, Shui and Zhuang ethnic tribes of the south-western Chinese provinces of Guizhou, Yunnan and Guangxi, are decorated with richly coloured stitched and sewn ornamentations and sometimes silver applications indigenous to the particular culture and long-lived traditions they derive from. As some ethnic minorities lack a written script, the symbolism and colour coding found in their textiles form a visual language that presents an important cultural and anthropological development and heritage still in practice today.

The Hmong, 1987-1995 J. Christina Smith, 1998     Chinese Textiles
Verity Wilson, 2005-08 Every Chinese textile tells a story and this book tells many stories of Chinese life and legend through the sumptuous textiles that adorn its pages. Breathtaking in workmanship, colour and design, they were made for a purpose and it is those created for celebrations that dominate the selection in this book. As well as dealing with technique and influence, Wilson tells the story of each piece, why it was made and for whom, and introduces us to a galaxy of characters from China's history and legend. The superb photography allows us to see how richly these textiles reflect the culture from which they come.

Hmong and American Vincent K. Her, Mary Louise Buley-Meissner, 2012 Farmers in Laos, U.S. allies during the Vietnam War, refugees in Thailand, settlers in the Western world, the stories of the Hmong have been told in detail through books and articles and oral histories over the past several decades. Like any immigrant group, the first generation may yearn for the past as they watch their children and grandchildren find their way in the dominant culture of their new home. For Hmong people born and educated in the United States, a definition of self often includes traditional practices and tight-knit family groups but also a fully Americanized point of view. How do these members of the 1.5 and second generation of American Hmong negotiate the expectations of these two cultures? How can their classmates and neighbors better understand what it means to be both Hmong and American? In this collection of essays, historians, sociologists, teachers, counselors and artists explore the concepts of war refugee status, resettlement and assimilation, weaving their own stories into their depictions of a community that continues to develop complex identities, both abundantly shared and deeply personal.
