Obstetrics And Gynaecology A Critical Approach To The Clinical Problems:

Obstetrics and Gynaecology Gerald Joseph Jarvis, 1994 This postgraduate textbook of obstetrics and gynecology is written by a clinician with an extensive involvement in both teaching and research Each chapter takes a particular topic and examines the importance of that subject to both patients and doctors The author assesses by a critical analysis of the international literature the evidence upon which contemporary clinical management is based and allows the reader to assess the strength of the evidence for him or herself Detailed reference lists follow each chapter The chapters have been designed to demonstrate where current methods of management have been incompletely assessed and therefore indicate where further research and development are appropriate The areas in which there have been major changes in the last decade have received the most attention for example major chapters are devoted to subfertility contraception infection the management of the menopause malignant disease a critique of prenatal diagnosis antenatal care and fetal well being and the benefits and hazards of natural childbirth This book has been written for two principle groups of readers first for busy specialist clinicians who wish to keep abreast of developments and new techniques and secondly for candidates for higher professional examination who wish to gain broad and detailed grasp of the speciality

The Menstrual Cycle Michel Ferin, Raphael Jewelewicz, Michelle P. Warren, 1993 This volume clarifies in a logical and didactic manner the sequence of events that characterize the human menstrual cycle Each major organ involved in the cycle the brain the pituitary gland the ovary and the uterus is discussed and its contribution specifically outlined The chapters trace the physiologic events within each of these organs describe the hormones by which they communicate and outline how critical aspects of the cycle are synchronized so that an ovulatory cycle can occur Thus neuroendocrine control of the menstrual cycle is examined in detail and the processes of follicular development maturation ovulation and maintenance of the corpus luteum are thoroughly covered The book then turns to pathophysiology and examines the conditions under which the menstrual cycle may become abnormal Pathophysiological mechanisms that cause cycle disturbance anovulation and infertility are reviewed as are clinical presentations of common menstrual disorders and their treatment Progress in reproductive biology has been rapid and the research spans several disciplines In this volume information dispersed in many publications has been synthesized and concisely presented providing an in depth understanding of the processes that control reproductive function in the female

The Implicit Relation of Psychology and Law Fiona Raitt, Suzanne Zeedyk, 2020-07-24 The Implicit Relation of Psychology and Law brings an innovative feminist analysis to these affiliated fields In addition to the explicit relationship between the two fields they argue that there is an unrecognised implicit relation existing within the intersection of psychology and law which they find works to the disadvantage of women
