Psychiatric Nursing Skills Graham Dexter, Michael Wash, 2013-12-01 In this book we have attempted to identify skills which are needed by the psychiatric nurse and in doing so to identify a body of knowledge unique to the professional psychiatric nurse The book has been written to demonstrate the basis of a skills approach for both the experienced and the inexperienced nurse to build upon for we believe that psychiatric nurses due to both their training and their particular mixture of interests are well equipped to be in the forefront of psychiatry as a developing art and science We hope that this book in some small way helps this development Some of the more recent advances in psychiatric nursing have been reinforced by the publication of a training syllabus for mental nurses English and Welsh National Boards 1982 This document highlights the need for a change from a medical model to a social model and from a task oriented learning experience to a skills approach We have attempted to reflect this change in emphasis by including such aspects as personal development and self aware ness human sexuality the nursing process and counselling skills

Judd Marmor,2012-12-06 It is sobering to reflect that it has been nearly fifty years since Thomas French s article on the Interrelations between Psychoanalysis and the Experimental Work of Pavlov representing the first psychoanalyst to bridge the gap between the theories of conditioning was published In hjs paper French clearly delineated the manner and directions in which these two points of view might enrich each other Regrettably his open ness to new ideas has not been characteristic of most schools of psychiatry thought which have tended instead to develop an unfortu nate degree of insularity This has occurred despite the obvious reality that the bio social psychological nature of man is such that no one theory or discipline is likely in the foreseeable future to explain much less predict all of the complexities of human behavior All too often disputing theoreticians like the fabled blind men describing the elephant assume that the whole is just a gigantic magnification of the parts with which they are in contact When treatment strategies are extrapolated from such narrow views more often than not they fail to achieve the parsimony of effort the breadth of application and the maximum of efficiency that one would hope for In our opinion it is impossible adequately to conceptualize person ality development symptom formation or responses to psychotherapy without taking into consideration theories of conflict as well as those of learning Systematic Treatment Selection
