

Wounded child, Belgium, England, January 1945.

Boy with shrapnel head in children's prison.

"The worst part of war, in our opinion, is what happens to the innocents—the women without homes or families, the orphaned kids left to wander as orphans. There were a lot of them in Warsaw. I remember a young Polish boy sitting by the window of the house where his parents had been shot down after a fight. I had two conversations with shrapnel heads in a children's prison. Human remains exposed by some enemy that had been moved on, leaving the children to fend for themselves. The orphanhood of war was never going to go. Nations should stay in ignorance."

have made significant contributions to the field of photography for well over a century This bibliography compiles more than 1 070 sources for over 600 photographers from the 1880s to the present As women s role in society changed so did their role as photographers In the early years women often served as photographic assistants in their husbands studios The photography equipment initially heavy and difficult to transport was improved in the 1880s by George Eastman s innovations With the lighter camera equipment photography became accessible to everyone Women photographers became journalists and portraitists who documented vanishing cultures and ways of life Many of these important female photographers recorded life in the growing Northwest and the streets of New York City became pioneers of historic photography as they captured the plight of Americans fleeing the Dust Bowl and the horrors of the concentration camps and were members of the Photo Secessionist Movement to promote photography as a true art form This source serves as a checklist for not only the famous but also the less familiar women photographers who deserve attention What Photographs Do Elizabeth Edwards,Ella Ravilious,2022-11-21 What are photographs doing in museums Why are some photographs valued and others not Why are some photographic practices visible and not others What value systems and hierarchies do they reflect What Photographs Do explores how museums are defined through their photographic practices It focuses not on formal collections of photographs as accessioned objects be they fine art or archival but on what might be termed non collections the huge number of photographs that are integral to the workings of museums yet invisible existing outside the structures of the collection These photographs however raise complex and ambiguous questions about the ways in which such accumulations of photographs create the values hierarchies histories and knowledge systems through multiple folded and overlapping layers that might be described as the museum s ecosystem These photographic dynamics are studied through the prism of the Victoria and Albert Museum London an institution with over 150 years engagement with photography s multifaceted uses and existences in the museum The book differs from more usual approaches to museum studies in that it presents not only formal essays but short auto ethnographic interventions from museum practitioners from studio photographers and image managers to conservators and non photographic curators who address the significance of both historical and contemporary practices of photography in their work As such this book offers an extensive and unique range of accounts of what photographs do in museums expanding the critical discourse of both photography and museums
