Writing and Identity Roz Ivani?,1998-03-15 Writing is not just about conveying content but also about the representation of self One of the reasons people find writing difficult is that they do not feel comfortable with the me they are portraying in their writing Academic writing in particular often poses a conflict of identity for students in higher education because the self which is inscribed in academic discourse feels alien to them The main claim of this book is that writing is an act of identity in which people align themselves with socio culturally shaped subject positions and thereby play their part in reproducing or challenging dominant practices and discourses and the values beliefs and interests which they embody The first part of the book reviews recent understandings of social identity of the discursal construction of identity of literacy and identity and of issues of identity in research on academic writing The main part of the book is based on a collaborative research project about writing and identity with mature age students providing a case study of one writer's dilemmas over the presentation of self a discussion of the way in which writers' life histories shape their presentation of self in writing an interview based study of issues of ownership and of accommodation and resistance to conventions for the presentation of self linguistic analysis of the ways in which multiple often contradictory interests values beliefs and practices are inscribed in discourse conventions which set up a range of possibilities for selfhood for writers The book ends with implications of the study for research on writing and identity and for the learning and teaching of academic writing The book will be of interest to students and researchers in the fields of social identity literacy discourse analysis rhetoric and composition studies and to all those concerned to understand what is involved in academic writing in order to provide wider access to higher education
