Visual Processes in Reading and Reading Disabilities Dale M. Willows,Richard Kruk,Evelyne Corcos,2012-12-06 Over the last 25 years reading processes have been the focus of an enormous amount of research in experimental psychology as well as in other disciplines The theories and models emerging from this research have greatly advanced understanding of both normal acquisition and of reading disabilities Although great progress has been made there are certain aspects that have been relatively neglected in the current understanding Specifically the role of visual factors has received less attention than that of other component processes This is particularly surprising since reading and writing are distinct from the other language processes of speaking and listening in large part by virtue of the fact that a visual dimension is involved Relevant research is broadly scattered both geographically and in terms of disciplines and there have been no major reviews or books concerned with the visual dimension of reading and reading disabilities The purpose of this book is to bring together a broad range of evidence that concerns the role of visual information in reading and reading disabilities Because reading processes are of central interest to cognitive scientists neuropsychologists psycholinguists clinicians and educators this book should draw a very broad readership humanity's degeneration from our original state of perpetual wonder and joy Drawing on more than 20 years of research authors Tony Wright and Graham Gynn explore how our modern brains are performing far below their potential and how we can unlock our higher abilities and return to the euphoria of Eden They explain how for millions of years early forest dwelling humans were primarily consuming the hormone rich sex organs of plants fruit each containing a highly complex biochemical cocktail evolved to influence DNA transcription rapid brain development and elevated neural and pineal gland activity Citing recent neurological and psychological studies the authors explain how the loss of our symbiotic fruit based diet led to a progressive neurodegenerative condition characterized by aggressive behaviors a fearful perception of the world and the suppression of higher artistic mathematical and spiritual abilities The authors show how many shamanic and spiritual traditions were developed to counteract our decline They outline a strategy of raw foods tantric sexuality shamanic practices and entheogen use to reverse our degeneration restore our connection with the plant world and regain the bliss and peace of the brain of Eden
