

The symbolic interaction perspective, also called symbolic interactionism, is a major framework of sociological theory. This perspective relies on the symbolic meaning that people develop and rely upon in the process of social interaction. Although symbolic interactionism traces its origins to Max Weber's assertion that individuals act according to their interpretation of the meaning of their world, the American philosopher George Herbert Mead introduced this perspective to American sociology in the 1920s.

Symbolic interaction theory analyzes society by addressing the subjective meanings that people impose on objects, events, and behaviors. Subjective meanings are given primacy because it is believed that people behave based on what they believe and not just on what is objectively true. Thus, society is thought to be socially constructed through human interpretation. People interpret one another's behavior and it is these interpretations that form the social bond.

These interpretations are called the "definition of the situation."

For example, why would young people smoke cigarettes even when all objective medical evidence points to the dangers of doing so? The answer is in the definition of the situation that people create. Studies find that teenagers are well informed about the risks of tobacco, but they also think that smoking is cool, that they themselves will be safe from harm, and that smoking projects a positive image to their peers. So, the symbolic meaning of smoking overrides that actual facts regarding smoking and risk.

Some fundamental aspects of our social experience and identities, like race and gender, can be understood through the symbolic interactionist lens. Having no biological bases at all, both race and gender are social constructs that function based on what we believe to be true about people, given what they look like. We use socially constructed meanings of race and gender to help us decide who to interact with, how to do so, and to help us determine, sometimes inaccurately, the meaning of a person's words or actions.

One shocking example of how this theoretical concept plays out within the social construct of race is manifested in the fact that many people, regardless of race, believe

Self and Identity in Modern Psychology and Indian Thought Anand C. Paranjpe, 2005-12-11 East meets West in this fascinating exploration of conceptions of personal identity in Indian philosophy and modern Euro American psychology Author Anand Paranjpe considers these two distinct traditions with regard to historical disciplinary and cultural gaps in the study of the self and in the context of such theoretical perspectives as univocalism relativism and pluralism The text includes a comparison of ideas on self as represented by two eminent thinkers Erik H Erikson for the Western view and Advaita Vedanta for the Indian Impression Management Theory and Social Psychological Research James T. Tedeschi, 2013-09-24 Impression Management Theory and Social Psychological Research gathers together the various strands of thinking and research on impression management This book does not easily lend itself to a singular organization Not only do the authors deal with very different topics they sometimes disagree with one another on assumptions and interpretations Nevertheless there are chapters that tend to group together The book can be organized into six parts Part I General Theory consists of chapters that deal primarily with issues related to the reasons for and specific tactics of impression management Part II Impression Management and Laboratory Research includes two chapters that make a major contribution to the social psychology of the experiment Part III Attitudes as Tactics of Self Presentation centers around the concept of attitudes The chapters in Part IV Self Presentation and Harm Doing are organized around the theme of harm doing Part V Bargaining Distributive Justice and Impression Management focuses on the distribution of rewards in groups Part VI Individual Differences and Impression Management is concerned with individual differences such as mental illness social anxiety and shyness
