Religion And Regime:

Religion and Regimes Mehran Tamadonfar, Ted G. Jelen, 2013-11-26 This work is a collection of essays that describe and analyze religion and regime relations in various nations in the contemporary world The contributors examine patterns of interaction between religious actors and national governments that include separation support and opposition In general the contributors find that most countries have a majority or plurality religious tradition which will seek a privileged position in public life The nature of the relationship between such traditions and national policy is largely determined by the nature of opposition A pattern of quasi establishment is most common in settings in which opposition to a dominant religious tradition is explicitly religious However in some instances the dominant tradition is associated with a discredited prior regime in which a pattern of legal separation is most common Conversely in some nations a dominant religion is for historical reasons strong associated with national identity Such regimes are often characterized by a lazy monopoly in which the public influence of religion is reduced

Religious Regimes and State Formation Eric R. Wolf, 1991-01-01 This book intends to systematically overcome the received practice of treating religion and politics as wholly separate and independent domains It studies power and meaning in their antagonistic interdependencies rather than approaching religion purely as a realm of meaning without reference to issues of power or dealing with politics as the province of power without raising questions of meaning Religion and politics are thus seen in relation to one another and attention is focused on the disputes about how political and religious regimes should be formed Religious Regimes and State Formation will convince the reader that god and politics have much in common and offers surprising new perspectives on old problems

Religion-Regime Relations in Zimbabwe Ezra Chitando, Lovemore Togarasei, Joram Tarusarira, 2023-08-01 This book explores religion regime relations in contemporary Zimbabwe to identify patterns of co operation and resistance across diverse religious institutions Using co operation and resistance as an analytical framework the book shows how different religious organisations have interacted with Emmerson Mnangagwa s Second Republic following Robert Mugabe s departure from the political scene In particular through case studies on the Zimbabwe Council of Churches Zimbabwe Catholic Bishops Conference and Pentecostals African Traditional Religions Islam and others the book explores how different religious institutions have responded to Mnangagwa s new regime Chapters highlight the complexities characterising the religion regime interface showing how the same religious organisation might co operate and resist at the same time Furthermore the book compares how religious institutions co operated or resisted Mugabe s earlier regime to identify patterns of continuity and change Overall the book highlights the challenges of deploying simplistic frames in efforts to understand the interface between politics and religion A significant contribution to global scholarship on religion regime interfaces this book will appeal to academics and students in the field of Religious Studies Political Science History and African Studies

Transnational Religion And Fading States Susanne H Rudolph,2018-02-07 Focusing on the dilution of state sovereignty this book examines how the crossing of state boundaries by religious movements leads to the formation of transnational civil society Challenging the assertion that future conflict will be of the clash of civilization variety it looks to the micro origins of conflicts which are as likely to arise between states sharing a religion as between those divided by it and more likely to arise within rather than across state boundaries Thus the chapters reveal the dual potential of religious movements as sources of peace and security as well as of violent conflict Featuring an East West North South approach the volume avoids the conventional and often ethnocentric segregation of the experience of other regions from the European and American Contributors draw examples from a variety of civilizations and world religions They contrast self generated movements from below such as Protestant sectarianism in Latin America or Sufi Islam in Africa with centralized forms of organization and patterns of diffusion from above such as state certified religion in China Together the chapters illustrate how religion as bearer of the politics of meaning has filled the lacuna left by the decline of ideology creating a novel transnational space for world politics Religion and Public Administration Edoardo Ongaro,Michele Tantardini,2023-06-01 Exploring the manifold relationships between religion and public administration this topical book conceptualises and theorises the diverse influence of religions on the functioning of public administrative systems across the globe

Modeling Religion Wesley J. Wildman,F. LeRon Shults,2024-06-13 What role has religion played in the major civilizational transformations associated with the Neolithic Revolution the Axial Age and Modernity This book introduces new methodological tools and material insights for guiding conversations about these debates The authors introduce a new branch of computational humanities using computational modeling to simulate civilizational transformations They integrate multiple theories across many disciplines including the scientific study of religion and evaluate the relative importance of those causal theories in processes of civilizational change Materially the book sheds new light on major debates among historians archaeologists and other social theorists on the role of religion within these major transitions The book tackles the urgent question of what sort of civilizational transformations might be possible in a world where the influence and significance of religion continues to decline wherever technology education freedom and cultural pluralism are most advanced

The Oxford Handbook of Religion and Europe Grace Davie, Lucian Leuștean, 2022 Features contributions from leading scholars providing crucial insight into the role of religious ideas structures and institutions in the making of Europe Introduces the building blocks of Europe's religious and the part that they played in the formation of the continent Explores the relationship between religious communities and ideologies in the twentieth century connections that play out very differently in East and West Europe Examines the role of religion in the construction of the European Union from the end of the Second World War until the present day Assesses the relationship between the major world religions and the idea of Europe Book jacket

Religion and Civil Society in Europe Joep de Hart, Paul Dekker, Loek Halman, 2013-07-15 Religion is back again in Europe after never having been gone It is manifest in the revival of religious institutions and traditions in former communist countries in political controversies about the relationship between the churches and the state and about the freedom of religion and the freedom to criticize religion and in public unease about religious minorities This book is about religion and civil society in Europe It moves from general theoretical and normative approaches of this relationship via the examination of national patterns of religion state relations to in depth analyses of the impact of religion and secularization on the values pro social attitudes and civic engagement of individuals It covers Europe from the Lutheran North to the Catholic South and from the secularized West to the Orthodox East and Islamic South East with comparative analyses and country studies concluding with an overall Europe USA comparison

Representing Religion in the European Union Lucian Leuștean, 2013 Religious actors are becoming part of the EU bureaucratic system and their mobilisation in Brussels and Strasbourg in the last decade has increased dramatically This book explores the mechanism and impact of religious representation by examining relations between religious practitioners and politicians in the European Union from the Second World War until today This book seeks to answer the following questions How do trans national religious groups enter into contact with European institutions What are the rationale and the mechanisms of religious representation in the European Union How are religious values transposed into political strategies What impact has relations between religious practitioners EU officials and politicians on the construction of the European Union Examining religious representation at the state transnational and institutional levels this volume demonstrates that faith is becoming an increasingly important element of the decision making process It includes chapters written by both academics and religious practitioners in dialogue with European institutions and will be of great interest to students and scholars of European politics history sociology of religion law and international relations

Religion in International Relations Theory Nukhet Sandal, Jonathan Fox, 2013-06-19

There is a growing realization among international relations scholars and practitioners that religion is a critical factor in global politics. The Iranian Revolution, the September 11 attacks, the ethno religious conflicts such as the ones in the former Yugoslavia and Sri Lanka are among the many reasons for this increased focus on religion in international affairs. The rise of religious political parties across the world ranging from the Christian Democrats in Europe to Bharatiya Janata Party in India similarly illustrated religion's heightened international profile. Despite all this attention it is challenging to situate religion within a discipline which has been dominantly secular from its inception. Only a few existent works have ventured to integrate religion into core international relations theories such as Classical Realism, Neorealism, Neoliberalism, Constructivism and the English school. This work is the first systematic attempt to comparatively assess the place of religion in the aforementioned theoretical strands of international relations with contemporary examples from around the world. Written in an accessible and systematic fashion, this book will be an important addition to the fields of both religion and international relations.

Nukhet A. Sandal is Assistant Professor in the Political Science Department at Ohio University. Jonathan Fox is Professor in the Department of Political Studies at Bar Ilan University, Israel.

Faith in Numbers Michael Hoffman, 2021-01-18. Why does religion sometimes increase support for democracy and sometimes do just the opposite? In Faith in Numbers, political scientist Michael Hoffman presents a theory of religion, group interest and democracy. Focusing on communal religion, he demonstrates that the effect of communal prayer on support for democracy depends on the interests of the religious group in question. For members of groups who would benefit from democracy, communal prayer increases support for democratic institutions; for citizens whose groups would lose privileges in the event of democratic reforms, the opposite effect is present. Using a variety of data sources, Hoffman illustrates these claims in multiple contexts. He places particular emphasis on his study of Lebanon and Iraq, two countries in which sectarian divisions have played a major role in political development, by utilizing both existing and original surveys. By examining religious and political preferences among both Muslims and non-Muslims in several religiously diverse settings, Faith in Numbers shows that theological explanations of religion and democracy are inadequate. Rather, it demonstrates that religious identities and sectarian interests play a major part in determining regime preferences and illustrates how Islam, in particular, can be mobilized for both pro and anti-democratic purposes. It finds that Muslim religious practice is not necessarily anti-democratic; in fact, in a number of settings, practicing Muslims are considerably more supportive of democracy than their secular counterparts. Theological differences alone do not determine whether members of religious groups tend to support or oppose democracy; rather, their participation in communal worship motivates them to view democracy through a sectarian lens.

Religion and Volunteering

Lesley Hustinx, Johan von Essen, Jacques Haers, Sara Mels, 2014-07-17 Religion is considered a key predictor of volunteering the more religious people are the more likely they are to volunteer This positive association enjoys significant support in current research in fact it could be considered the default perspective on the relationship between both phenomena In this book the authors claim that although the dominant approach is legitimate and essential it nonetheless falls short in grasping the full complexity of the interaction between religion and volunteering It needs to be recognized that there are tensions between religion and volunteering and that these tensions are intensifying as a result of the changing meaning and role of religion in society Therefore the central aim and contribution of this book is to demonstrate that the relationship between religion and volunteering is not univocal but differentiated ambiguous and sometimes provocative By introducing the reader to a much wider landscape of perspectives this volume offers a richer more complex and variable understanding Apart from the established positive causality the authors examine tensions between religion and volunteering from the perspective of religious obligation religious change processes of secularization and notions of post secularity They further explore how actions that are considered altruistic politically neutral and motivated by religious beliefs can be used for political reasons This volume opens up the field to new perspectives on religious actors and on how religion and volunteering are enacted outside Western liberal and Christian societies It emphasizes interdisciplinary perspectives including theology philosophy sociology political science anthropology and architecture
