Reconfigurations of Philosophy of Religion Jim Kanaris, 2018-04-01 Explores the place and meaning of philosophy of religion in our current poststructuralist postsecular postcolonialist context This collection addresses as it exemplifies an identity crisis in contemporary philosophy of religion It represents a unique two way dialogue between philosophers of religion and scholars of religion and broaches issues pertaining to the philosophy of religion and the philosophical tradition on the one hand and religious studies theology and the modern academy on the other While each author manages the current challenges in philosophy of religion differently one can nonetheless discern a polyphony of interests surrounding a postcritical postsecular appreciation of religion In part 1 contributors ask how philosophy of religion can accommodate both the strengths and weaknesses of Western analytic and continental traditions incorporate developments in ideology critique gender studies and Asian philosophies and negotiate the perceived stalemate in philosophy of religion Part 2 addresses these questions in terms of a philosophy of religion that is postcolonial in intention and multidisciplinary in orientation and features scholarship from the fields of both religion and theology An underlying theme is the importance of ushering philosophy of religion into a postphenomenological era of religious studies and theology This is a neglected dimension in many laudable discussions about philosophy of religion that this volume hopes to emend This gathering of important voices and the differences of approach and opinion that they represent invites provokes reflection self examination by philosophers of religion and further work Jeffrey Dudiak author of The Intrigue of Ethics A Reading of the Idea of Discourse in the Thought of Emmanuel Levinas

Good Science, Bad Science, Pseudoscience, and Just Plain Bunk Peter Daempfle, 2013 We are constantly bombarded with breaking scientific news in the media but we are almost never provided with enough information to assess the truth of these claims This book teaches readers how to think like a scientist to question claims like these more critically

in a Creation Nation Adam Laats, Harvey Siegel, 2016-03-03 No fight over what gets taught in American classrooms is more heated than the battle over humanity's origins. For more than a century we have argued about evolutionary theory and creationism and its successor theory intelligent design yet we seem no closer to a resolution than we were in Darwin's day. In this thoughtful examination of how we teach origins, historian Adam Laats and philosopher Harvey Siegel offer crucial new ways to think not just about the evolution debate but how science and religion can make peace in the classroom. Laats and Siegel agree with most scientists: creationism is flawed as science. But they argue students who believe it nevertheless need to be accommodated in public school science classes. Scientific or not, creationism maintains an important role in American history and culture as a point of religious dissent, a sustained form of protest that has weathered a century of broad and often dramatic social changes. At the same time, evolutionary theory has become a critical building block of modern knowledge. The key to accommodating both viewpoints, they show, is to disentangle belief from knowledge. A student does not need to believe in evolution in order to understand its tenets and evidence and in this way can be fully literate in modern scientific thought and still maintain contrary religious or cultural views. Altogether, Laats and Siegel offer the kind of level-headed analysis that is crucial to finding a way out of our culture war deadlock. Revolutionary Change and Democratic Religion Celucien L. Joseph, 2020-04-15 In Revolutionary Change and Democratic Religion, Celucien Joseph provides a fresh and careful reexamination of Haiti's intellectual history by focusing on the ideas and writings of five prominent thinkers and public intellectuals: Toussaint Louverture, Joseph Antenor Firmin, Jacques Roumain, Dantes Bellegarde, and Jean Price Mars. The book articulates a twofold argument. First of all, Haiti has produced a strong intellectual tradition from the revolutionary era to the postcolonial present, and that Haitian thought is not homogeneous and monolithic. Joseph puts forth the idea that the general interweaving themes of rhetoric, the race concept, race vindication, universal emancipation, religious pluralism, secular humanism, the particular and the universal, and cosmopolitanism are representative of Haiti's intellectual tradition. Secondly, the book also contends that Haitian intellectuals have produced a religious discourse in the twentieth century that could be phrased as religious métissage. The religious ideas of these thinkers have been shaped by various forces: ideologies, religious traditions, and philosophical schools. In the same way, the religious experience of the Haitian people should be understood in terms of conflicting heterodox and pluralistic manifestations of religious piety, as the people in Haiti reacted to the crisis of slavery, Western colonialism and imperialism, and the arrogance of race in modernity in their striving to reposition themselves within the framework of universal and human metanarratives. The book departs from the dominant contemporary Vodou scholarship that is often characteristic of North American and Western studies on the religious life of the Haitian people and Haitian thinkers. Culture and Religion Basil Pohlong, 2004 The book mainly discusses conceptual issues in relation to the central role that religion plays in culture. Confucianism as a World Religion Anna Sun, 2013-04-21 Is Confucianism a religion? If so, why do most Chinese think it isn't? From ancient Confucian temples to nineteenth-century archives to the testimony of people interviewed by the author throughout China over a period of more than a decade this book traces the birth and growth of the idea of Confucianism as a world religion The book begins at Oxford in the late nineteenth century when Friedrich Max Müller and James Legge classified Confucianism as a world religion in the new discourse of world religions and the emerging discipline of comparative religion Anna Sun shows how that decisive moment continues to influence the understanding of Confucianism in the contemporary world not only in the West but also in China where the politics of Confucianism has become important to the present regime in a time of transition Contested histories of Confucianism are vital signs of social and political change Sun also examines the revival of Confucianism in contemporary China and the social significance of the ritual practice of Confucian temples While the Chinese government turns to Confucianism to justify its political agenda Confucian activists have started a movement to turn Confucianism into a religion Confucianism as a world religion might have begun as a scholarly construction but are we witnessing its transformation into a social and political reality With historical analysis extensive research and thoughtful reflection Confucianism as a World Religion will engage all those interested in religion and global politics at the beginning of the Chinese century Good Science, Bad Science, Pseudoscience, and Just Plain Bunk Peter A.
