Religion and Gender in the Developing World Tamsin Bradley, 2010-12-07

Faith-based development organizations have become a central part of the lives of the women of rural Rajasthan and have come to represent an important aspect of both individual and collective identities. And yet religious teachings continue to be used to exclude women from public decision-making forums and render them vulnerable to increasing levels of domestic violence. In a unique multi-disciplinary approach combining a range of subjects, Tamsin Bradley provides a unique study of the role of development organizations and faith organizations in the lives of women in rural Rajasthan. Faith and religion emerge as being able to afford a space within which women are able to interact with one another and create an identity for themselves. However, faith proves not just to be a positive sphere in which women are able to assert themselves. Its ambiguity becomes clear as the author explains that religious women often find their visions of social justice and equality marginalised by the dominance of male leadership. Nevertheless, Bradley also looks at how religious women challenge male dominance, drawing on their beliefs and practices in creative and innovative ways. Thus a complex picture emerges, and including insights from gender studies and anthropology, Bradley argues that religion can both empower and disempower local communities and the women who live within them. By analysing development through the prism of gender studies, Bradley highlights the complex nature of power relationships that are at the very heart of development agendas and organizations and offers an invaluable contribution to the understanding of the nexus of varied disciplines in the analysis of women and religion in Rajasthan. This book will be of interest to students, researchers, and policy makers involved in various fields including those of Development Studies Religion Gender Studies and Social Anthropology religion in colleges and universities in North America and Europe that studies almost always exhibit a religious bias To explore this issue Wiebe looks at the religious and moral agendas behind the study of religion showing that the boundaries between the objective study of religion and religious education as a tool for bettering society have become blurred As a result he argues religious studies departments have fostered an environment where religion has become a learned or scholarly practice rather than the object of academic scrutiny This book provides a critical history of the failure of 20th and 21st century scholars to follow through on the 19th century ideal of an objective scientific study of religious thought and behaviour Although emancipated from direct ecclesiastical control and to some extent from sectarian theologizing Wiebe argues that research and scholarship in the academic department of religious studies has failed to break free from religious constraints He shows that an objective scientific study of religious thought and practice is not only possible but the only appropriate approach to the study of religious phenomena

Topographies of Faith, 2013-04-15 Based on ethnographic explorations in cities across the globe Topographies of Faith offers a unique and compelling analysis of contemporary religious dynamics in metropolitan centers While most scholarship on religion still sidelines questions of spatiality and scale this book creatively draws on perspectives from urban studies to study the spatiality of religion in modern cities It shows how globalization transnational migration and urban expansion in big cities engender new religious forms and practices and their spatial underpinnings Space affects urban religious diversity religious innovations decline or vitality But it also shapes the relationships between religion and social equalities Spanning distances between New York Delhi and Johannesburg the book also engages with issues of secularity and religious vitality in genuinely new ways Contributors include Irene Becci Synn ve Bendixsen Marian Burchardt Jos Casanova Murat Es Ajay Gandhi Weishang Huang Godwin Onuoha Samadia Sadouni Peter van der Veer and Leilah Vevaina
