Renal Disease In The Elderly:

Renal Function and Disease in the Elderly Juan F. Macias Nuñez, J. Stewart Cameron, 2014-04-24 Renal Function and Disease in the Elderly explores the renal system of elders The book details the various roles of renal system as well as the illnesses that the elderly can have The book is inspired by the insufficient attention this topic has received among medical personnel The book begins by discussing the changes in a person's vessels and kidney as he or she ages The discussion then shifts to the older person's glomerulus and renal blood flow Other chapters offer information about how aging affects a person's body systems and processes including water balance electrolytes kidneys proximal tubes and ingestion of drugs Diseases such as urinary tract infection interstitial nephropathies glomerulonephritis renal vasculitis renal cyst acute renal failure and obstructive uropathy are also explained While the book is primarily a valuable reference for medical practitioners in the field it also caters to students and casual readers Elderly readers regardless of whether they have a disease or not can also benefit from this book

Kidney Disease in the Elderly Holly Kramer, Edgar V. Lerma, Holly Koncicki, 2024-12-26 The over 65 population in the United States is rapidly growing There are currently about 52 million people over 65 years of age in the United States or 16.5% of the U.S. population This percentage is expected to reach 22% or 70 million by 2050 This means that during the professional lives of current trainees they can expect to see an increasing number of older patients in their practice Average life expectancy in 2004 was 75.2 yr for men and 80.4 yr for women Due to the pandemic average life expectancy has decreased for both men and women with declines differing by race and ethnicity Overall current average life expectancy is 75.1 years for men and 80.5 years for women During the 1990s the over 85 population was the fastest growing group at 38% growth This older age group was the largest consumer of healthcare services By 2060 the number of people age 85 years and older is projected to triple from its current estimate of 6.7 million to 19.0 million A substantial percentage of this population has some level of disability sensory physical mental or self care Once a senior develops disability it greatly impacts their ability to self manage their disease and follow a complex medical regimen Patients with chronic kidney disease CKD usually require complicated medication routines complex dietary restrictions frequent medical visits and receive care from multiple physicians Thus providing nephrology care for older patients with CKD requires specific knowledge and skills that are unique to this population Elderly patients will make up a growing proportion of the practice of nephrologists and other providers physicians and allied health providers involved with their care Clinical practitioners will need to become more comfortable with shouldering the full care of this segment of their patient population and work closely with a geriatrician and internists and family practitioners As we become more willing to offer life prolonging technologies in this vulnerable group we need to be willing to deal with the consequences of this decision Finally with their elderly patients clinicians face challenging ethical problems such as whether to withhold or withdraw dialysis Unless addressed promptly and effectively these ethical issues will greatly increase the stress on both the healthcare provider and family members The Aging Kidney in Health and Disease Juan F. Macías-Núñez,J. Stewart Cameron,Dimitrios G. Oreopoulos,2007-11-24 This volume will be a reliable source on the management of the elderly with renal disease There is an ever increasing proportion of the aging population affected by renal disease and hypertension and physicians are faced with atypical clinical presentations of renal disease in the aged as compared to younger people This volume combines the fields of nephrology and geriatrics and presents a multidisciplinary approach to the topic Geriatric Nephrology Dimitrios G.

Oreopoulos,1986-06-30 The year was 1943 As a third year medical student at Stanford I was about to witness the beginning of a medical miracle Dr Arthur Bloomfield Professor of Medicine had selected my patient a middle aged man who was dying of acute pneumococcal pneumonia as one of the first patients to receive miniscule doses by today s standards of his meagre supply of a new drug penicillin The patient s response amazed everyone especially this impressionable medical student The rest of the story is history With one stroke the introduction of penicillin removed from the medical scene the friend of the aged lobar pneumonia The consequences which no one could have imagined at the time are still becoming manifest as other miracles such as respirators artificial kidneys and many potent new antibiotics have come upon the scene All of us are aware that these miracles have created a variety of new challenges around the states of dying and near dying We have no easy answers for these problems Nevertheless as dialysis techniques especially CAPD are applied more widely to the treatment of the elderly the task of helping the patient meet death with dignity becomes increasingly important and vexing because once begun dialysis is difficult to terminate Cardiovascular and Kidney Disease within the Geriatric Population in Developing
