hazel plant that's almost extinct. Speare Morgan Irwan and his sister Intan stumble across an abandoned castle. Lost in time, everything within the rooms appears untouched and from a different era. Its only occupants: Tabitha, a talking tabby cat, and Pascal, a ghost. According to Tabitha, ninety-five years ago, in the midst of preparations for a wedding, they were hit by a storm. The storm not only left behind a trail of destruction but all the people within the castle grounds had also disappeared, including its owner John Galloway. Upon gaining consciousness, Pascal, who was involved in an accident as he returned in the storm, was shocked to discover that he was no longer human but a ghost. Tabitha seeks their assistance to understand what had transpired here. She believes the castle is under an evil spell. To add to the mystery, her friend Darius, the Dragamist, a dragon, hadn't returned from his last mission while the steamship The Evening Star with John's bride aboard were lost at sea. Quite unexpectedly, Tabitha also discovers an imprint of a bear in the trunk of a tree on the grounds. Are these just mere coincidences or had something sinister taken place here? As they begin to uncover clues left behind within the three paintings of John Galloway and decipher the message written in runes around the empty frame, Grand Uncle Dragalileo makes a startling discovery. Within days on the anniversary of the disappearance, it might be possible for them to right the wrongs of the past, but first they must understand the link between the castle and an old nemesis.

When the Askelion is brought back into this dimension, Nelson's got to hero up and stop Simon and all the other superhumans who want to keep their powers. If Nelson doesn't stop them, it's not just his life that's at stake; the world itself could be destroyed.
