implications of the commercialisation of national broadcasting systems and the media policies of the European Union in the age of transfrontier media operations Public Service Media in Europe Karen Donders, 2021-06-10 Contributing to a rethink of Public Service Media this book combines theoretical insights and legal frameworks with practice examining theory and policy development in a bottom up manner It explores the practices of Public Service Media across Europe assessing the rules that govern Public Service Media at both the EU and the National Member State level identifying common trends initiated by both the European Commission and individual countries illustrating the context dependent development of Public Service Media and challenging the theories of Public Service Broadcasting which have developed an ideal type public broadcaster based on the well funded BBC in an atypical media market Seeking to further explore the actual practices of Public Service Media and make recommendations for the development of more sustainable policies this book offers case studies of rules and practices from across a variety of EU Member States to consider the extent to which public broadcasters are making the transition to public media organisations and how public broadcasters and governments are shaping Public Service Media together This book is a must read for all scholars who take an interest in Public Service Media media policy and media systems literature at large It will also be of interest to practitioners working in government Public Service Media and commercial media The Handbook of Global Media and Communication Policy Robin Mansell, Marc Raboy, 2014-03-03

The Handbook of Global Media and Communication Policy offers insights into the boundaries of this field of study assesses why it is important who is affected and with what political economic social and cultural consequences Provides the most up to date and comprehensive collection of essays from top scholars in the field Includes contributions from western and eastern Europe North and Central America Africa and Asia Offers new conceptual frameworks and new methodologies for mapping the contours of emergent global media and communication policy Draws on theory and empirical research to offer multiple perspectives on the local national regional and global forums in which policy debate occurs Politics and the Media in Britain Raymond Kuhn, 2017-09-16 This important new text provides an up to date account of the complex interrelationship between politics and the media in Britain It starts by setting key policy areas in the context of technological convergence globalization and initiatives at European level It then addresses the key issues the role of the media in politics and elections

Public Service Media and Policy in Europe K. Donders, 2011-11-15 An in depth account of EU policies in the area of public service broadcasting focusing mainly on the application of the European State aid rules The book discusses when how and with what impact the European Commission deals with public service broadcasting Media and Communications

Policy Making Robert G. Picard, 2020-03-25 This textbook focuses on how media and communications policy is made and what influences its design It explores the structures and processes in which policymaking takes place worldwide the factors that determine its forms influence its elements and affect its outcomes It explores how to analyze policy proposals evaluate policy and use policy studies approaches to examine policy and policymaking Truly international in scope it lays out the variety of political social economic and institutional influences on policy the roles of industries and policy advocates in the processes and issues and factors that complicate effective policymaking and skew policy outcomes This textbook is a valuable resource for advanced undergraduate and postgraduate students New Media and Revolution Billie Jeanne

Brownlee,2020-07-16 The Arab Spring did not arise out of nowhere It was the physical manifestation of more than a decade of new media diffusion use and experimentation that empowered ordinary people during their everyday lives In this book Billie Jeanne Brownlee offers a refreshing insight into the way new media can facilitate a culture of resistance and dissent in authoritarian states Investigating the root causes of the Syrian uprising of 2011 New Media and Revolution shows how acts of online resistance prepared the ground for better organised street mobilisation The book interprets the uprising not as the start of Syria s social mobilisation but as a shift from online to offline contestation and from localised and hidden practices of digital dissent to tangible mass street protests Brownlee goes beyond the common dichotomy that frames new media as either a deus ex machina or a means of expression to demonstrate that in Syria media was a nontraditional institution that enabled resistance to digitally manifest and gestate below within and parallel to formal institutions of power To refute the idea that the population of Syria was largely apathetic and apolitical prior to the uprising Brownlee explains that social media and technology created camouflaged geographies and spaces where individuals could protest without being detected Challenging the myth of authoritarian stability New Media and Revolution uncovers the dynamics of grassroots resistance blossoming under the radar of ordinary politics Broadcasting and Politics in Western Europe Raymond

Kuhn,2005-06-28 First Published in 1985 The changing face of Western European broadcasting provides a fascinating subject of study for the contemporary observer In part this is because the structures of different national broadcasting systems have altered over the past few years with the growth of new radio stations and television channels Of particular interest to political scientists is the fact that in many cases the contemporary debate on broadcasting as it affects both the old and new media is taking place in a different political ideological environment as well as a changing technological one So now is an opportune moment to provide an up to date survey of broadcasting and politics in Western Europe This is the objective of this special issue of West European Politics which consists of eight single country studies and one cross national comparative article The Political Economy of Communications Kenneth Dyson,Peter Humphreys,2023-10-20 First published in 1990 The Political Economy of Communications explores the central theme of the relationship between politics and markets in policy development The contributors show how governments have been drawn into increasing interdependency by technological and market developments with international institutions like the European Community becoming more important in these policy areas They argue that neither government ideologies nor market and technological forces offer an adequate account of the processes of change in communications policy These conclusions lead to a critique of central theories of international political economy notably neo liberalism and the authors advocate instead a neo pluralist perspective for the study of political economy of communications an approach that takes institutions much more seriously as a central unit of analysis The book will be of interest to students of international relations European studies and media and telecommunication studies as well as to political scientists and economists concerned with public policy
