A Law of Peoples for Recognizing States Chris Naticchia,2016-11-02 Which political entities should the international community recognize as member states granting them the rights and powers of statehood and entitling them to participate in formulating adjudicating and implementing international law What criteria should it use and are those criteria defensible From Kosovo Palestine and Taiwan to South Sudan Scotland South Ossetia Abkhazia and Catalonia these questions continuously arise and constantly challenge the international community for a consistent principled stance In response to this challenge Chris Naticchia offers a social contract argument for a theory of international recognition a normative theory of the criteria that states and international bodies should use to recognize political entities as member states of the international community Regardless of whether political entities adequately respect human rights or practice democracy he argues we must recognize a critical mass of them to get international institutions working Then we should recognize secessionist entities that suffer from persistent grave and widespread human rights abuses by their government and under certain conditions minority nations within multinational states that seek independence We must also recognize entities whose recognition would contribute to the economic development of the least well off entities Drawing on the social contract tradition and developing a broadly Rawlsian view A Law of Peoples for Recognizing States will both challenge and appeal to a broad readership in political philosophy international law and international relations

Proceedings of the ... Annual Meeting of the Conference of State and Provincial Health Authorities of North America, 1922 The Department of State Bulletin, 1984 The Crafting of Chaos Hildegard Kuester, 1994 In this study of the Canadian novelist Margaret Laurence recent narratological models provide the theoretical framework for a textual analysis that aims at complementing previous thematic critiques The chief focus is on The Stone Angel and The Diviners which the conclusion then presents in the context of the other novels in Laurence's Manawaka cycle Consideration of the published works is rounded off with genetic comparison of the novelist's typescript drafts and an evaluation of the manuscript notes kept in the archives of McMaster and York Universities The central structural principle of The Stone Angel is its dovetailing of past and present scenes Temporal arrangement reflecting the frequency and duration of Hagar's memories reveals the hold of memory over the central character and her attempts to suppress her fear of mortality Hagar as narrator manipulates character presentation and description to her own advantage In a basically oppositional structure her need for control is reflected in the neat ordering of the narrative The verbal texture of the novel serves to establish a value system that insists on the superiority of imported culture over Western Canadian forms The Diviners shares a number of narrative similarities with The Stone Angel but the latter's formal rigidity has yielded by the time Laurence writes her last novel to the concept of multiplicity characters time planes perspectives and narrative voices including metafictional commentaries Textual coherence is secured via narrative strategies including typography generational paradigms repetition parallelism intertextuality and tropological patterning that render the novel readable and present experience as ordered in a time of cultural flux and personal crisis
