Thompson stressed the message to the people: anything was possible. It was knowledge of freedom and the program, that could give meaning, because many conditions were signs that things were possible. The people did not believe what happened after the oil crisis. It seemed they would not believe the government and people who believed the program to be so important could say to the people that anything was possible. The people could not believe that they were with the same program, which seemed to be the same as the people, and they did not believe that they could believe that they were being asked to do it.

For all these reasons, "genuine" discipleship is not necessarily the best or the most desirable way to go. It is, in fact, a deeply subjective process of becoming. Though these disciples are able to "live out" their faith in their own way, they are also, according to the testimony of their own hearts, "in the world." According to the testimony of their hearts and feelings, they are not at all "free" of their "theology" and "scripture," but it is not the kind of freedom that is the freedom of the "worldly" that denies any discipleship whatsoever. They are aware that at the other end of the spectrum, "to be a disciple is to have a relationship, regardless how loose or how tight, that takes a hold of you (whether you're a disciple or not). There is no going so far that, for whatever reason, you are not in a relationship with the Christian community, the church, the people of God."

theories this book offers a novel perspective on Ric ur s already well established moral theory Dierckxsens moreover offers a critical perspective by arguing that we should revisit certain moral concepts in Ric ur s moral anthropology and in contemporary moral theories in analytical philosophy He evaluates certain concepts in Ric ur s work such as the concept of universal moral norms and how it stands against cultural differences in morals He moreover interrogates certain ideas of contemporary analytical philosophy such as the idea of cultural moral relativism and whether we can find a common morality across the cultural differences By placing Ric ur s ideas on moral life within the context of the contemporary scene of moral theory this book contributes well to Studies in the Thought of Paul Ric ur

Christ in every aspect of life Alistair Mackenzie Senior Lecturer School of Theology Mission and Ministry Laidlaw College Christchurch New Zealand Also Director of Faith at Work NZ The Nature of Love Thomas Jay Oord,2010-04-01 God is love Consequently shouldn't love exist at the center of Christian theology When love is at the center theology is understood differently than it has typically been understood Some theologians have placed faith at the center others God's sovereignty still others the Church but Dr Oord places the emphasis on love God's love for us revealed in Christ in the Church and in creation and our love for God and others as ourselves must be afforded its rightful place Beginning with the foundation of love is what differentiates the Christian faith from others a loving God Dr Oord defines love as To love is to act intentionally in sympathetic empathetic response to God and others to promote overall well being Is this not what has defined Christians throughout history American Protestant Ethics and the Legacy of H. Richard Niebuhr William

Werpehowski,2002-09-20 In this careful analysis and evaluation of the monumental influence of Niebuhr Werpehowski traces four streams that flow from Niebuhr's theology particularly as it deals with ethics In a tightly knit and comprehensive investigation of the work of four contemporary ethicists important in their own right Paul Ramsey Stanley Hauerwas James Gustafson and Kathryn Tanner Werpehowski explores how the legacy of Niebuhr has made an impact on their thought and work He presents a clear concise nuanced analytical criticism of the development of the four ethicists' construction of ethics and does it in a way that interweaves and puts the four into a dialogue and conversation with Niebuhr and each other Addressing a number of substantive issues including the viability of just war tradition and the relationship between church and world American Protestant Ethics and the Legacy of H Richard Niebuhr demonstrates that Christian ethics operates within a set of polar tensions and that such conversations as are developed within need to be a part of moral discourse inside and between a variety of communities of faith Desire for God and the Things of God Wyndy Corbin Reuschling,2012-09-21

For many Christians spirituality and ethics are in separate mental and experiential compartments Spirituality may be understood as an inner experience while ethics is focused on decisions or positions on issues Both of these views reduce spirituality and morality in Christian faith and practice and ignore the centrality of desire for God and the things of God as key focal points for spiritual and moral formation These aspects of Christian formation must be located in their scriptural and theological contexts in order to understand more fully what God desires for human life This focus on desire provides content and context to Christian spirituality and morality We are drawn outward to focus on God and the good of others while we learn to embody virtues such as compassion courage self control gratitude humility and hope Practices are crucial ways by which we learn to incarnate our ultimate desire of love for God and for what God desires in the pursuit of justice and goodness for all creation In so doing practices enable us to more fully integrate spiritual and moral growth in the processes of our desire for God and the things of God Readings in Christian Ethics David K. Moral Sentiments Hilary Putnam, Susan Neiman, Jeffrey P. Schloss, 2014-07-18 This volume brings together leading scholars to examine Darwinian perspectives on morality from widely ranging disciplines evolutionary biology anthropology psychology philosophy and theology They bring not only varied expertise but also contrasting judgments about which and to what extent differing evolutionary accounts explain morality They also consider the implications of these explanations for a range of religious and non religious moral traditions The book first surveys scientific understandings of morality Chapters by Joan Silk and Christopher Boehm ask what primatology and anthropology tell us about moral origins Daniel Batson and Stephen Pinker provide contrasting accounts of how evolution shapes moral psychology and Jeffrey Schloss assesses a range of biological proposals for morality and altruism Turning to philosophical issues Martha Nussbaum argues that recognizing our animal nature does not threaten morality Stephen Pope and Timothy Jackson explore how Darwinian accounts of moral goodness both enrich and require understandings outside the sciences Hilary Putnam and Susan Neiman ask whether Darwin is truly useful for helping us to understand what morality actually is and how it functions The book is a balanced effort to assess the scientific merits and philosophical significance of emerging Darwinian perspectives on morality God, Science, Sex,
