Hally, 2009-11-01 From 1933 to 1941 Macon was the site of the largest archaeological excavation ever undertaken in Georgia and one of the most significant archaeological projects to be initiated by the federal government during the depression The project was administered by the National Park Service and funded at times by such government programs as the Works Progress Administration Civilian Conservation Corps and Civil Works Administration At its peak in 1955 more than eight hundred laborers were employed in more than a dozen separate excavations of prehistoric mounds and villages The best known excavations were conducted at the Macon Plateau site the area President Franklin D Roosevelt proclaimed as the Ocmulgee National Monument in 1936 Although a wealth of material was recovered from the site in the 1930s little provision was made for analyzing and reporting it Consequently much information is still unpublished The sixteen essays in this volume were presented at a symposium to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Ocmulgee National Monument The symposium provided archaeologists with an opportunity to update the work begun a half century before and to bring it into the larger context of southeastern history and general advances in archaeological research and methodology Among the topics discussed are platform mounds settlement patterns agronomic practices earth lodges human skeletal remains Macon Plateau culture origins relations of site inhabitants with other aboriginal societies and Europeans and the challenges of administering excavations and park development     American Pottery and Glassware Reporter ,1883     The British Clayworker ,1906

farms taverns and pottery shops where Lincoln's neighbors once lived and worked Drawing readers into the thrill of discovery The Sangamo Frontier inaugurates a new kind of archaeological history that both enhances and challenges our written history It imbues today's landscape with an authentic ghostliness that will reawaken the curiosity of anyone interested in the forgotten people and places that helped shape our nation     Johnson's Universal Cyclopedia Charles Kendall Adams, 1895     Archeological Research Series John L.
