Making Campaigns Count Leadership And Coalition Building In 198:

Making Campaigns Count Darrell M. West, 1984-05-23 Darrell M West explores leadership and coalition building in the 1980 presidential campaign Concentrating upon the candidates own perceptions of the need to build coalitions that will elect them he raises questions that go to the heart of presidential politics how have changes in presidential campaigns influenced candidate strategies what coalitions did presidential contenders try to put together how did the candidates use rhetoric campaign travel and symbolism in their coalition building what did candidates learn from their audiences in their months and years on the campaign trail what do these lessons imply for political leadership and coalition building To answer these questions he draws on interviews with ninety advisors to candidates and on data taken from the candidates travels and speeches press coverage and audience reactions His findings reveal a surprising consistency in the approach to building an electoral majority Making campaigns count, 1984 Campaigns & Elections, 1984 Political Science Quarterly, 1985 Vols 4 38 40 41 include Record of political events Oct 1 1888 Dec 31 1925 issued as a separately paged supplement to no 3 of v 31 38 and to no 1 of v 40 The Welfare State in America Yeheskel Hasenfeld, Mayer N. Making Republicans Liberal Kristoffer Smemo, 2024-08-20

Mass movements and social protest forced mid century Republicans to articulate their own form of liberalism As poor and working people organized themselves on the job in the streets and at the polls during the mid twentieth century they forced Republicans to reckon with new demands for political and social citizenship in big cities across the Northeast Midwest and Pacific Coast While rightwing Republicans mobilized to crush those movements Making Republicans Liberal explores how another wing of the party responded to intensifying mass movement pressure Beginning in the 1930s Republican governors such as Earl Warren of California George Romney of Michigan and Nelson Rockefeller of New York spent the next four decades articulating their own vision of liberalism These Republican liberals believed that strategically they could not win elections and govern in places where unions civil rights groups and other social movements organized voters What may have begun as an opportunistic strategy soon mutated into an ideological commitment to use state power to realize working people s demands for a greater say and stake in the decisions governing their lives Republican liberals accepted labor s right to organize legislated antidiscrimination laws and legalized abortion Yet at the same time each of those policies proved weaker than the alternatives supported by organized labor or mainline civil rights groups and paled in comparison to what people on strike and on the march really wanted Kristoffer Smemo shows how this was the contradiction of Republican liberalism as a policy program and as an ideology The reforms it ushered in at once asked too much from core conservative Republican constituencies and offered too little to the movements struggling for change As the movements making Republicans compromise fragmented and collapsed in the late twentieth century so too did the material foundation for Republican liberalism
