Parenteral Nutrition in Infancy and Childhood Hans Bode, 2013-11-21 A tranquil mind puts flesh on a man English proverb After a period of relative neglect nutrition as a medical science is now an area of great clinical and investigative activity This renewed interest in clinical nutrition derives in large part from observations suggesting that early nutritional deprivation not only interferes with the maintenance of health growth and resistance to disease but if present during critical periods of central nervous system development may also cause permanent impairment of intellectual capacity Studies on brain development during malnutrition have continued to demonstrate the vulnerability of the developing brain to nutritional insult Winick 1968 has emphasized that nutritional deficiency occurring while cells of the central nervous system are actively dividing results in a permanent decrease in central nervous system cell number Later nutritional deficiency which results in decrease in cell size appears to be recoverable Perhaps even more important than effects of malnutrition on brain cell number is the effect on brain protein synthesis and myelination As different regions of the brain grow at different rates and human cerebellar and cerebral cell number increase for the first few months of life newborn nutritional deficiency may compromise brain development Dobbing 1973 has focused attention on the vulnerability of the brain to nutritional insult during the brain growth spurt which occurs around the time of birth In the human this period extends throughout the third trimester of pregnancy and into the second postnatal year

Nutrients in Infancy Colin Binns, Mi Kyung Lee, Masaharu Kagawa, 2018-07-04 This book is a printed edition of the Special Issue Nutrients in Infancy that was published in Nutrients

Infant Nutrition Natalie Updegrave Partridge, 1989

Protein and Energy Requirements in Infancy and Childhood Jacques Rigo, Ekhard E. Ziegler, 2006-01-01 In this volume world renowned specialists review the latest scientific information and recommendations for protein and energy requirements of infants and children New data obtained with the latest techniques show significantly lower requirements for both energy and protein than previously thought This will have far reaching implications for nutrition and health not only during infancy and childhood but also for long term health outcomes such as obesity and related disorders Indeed for the latest generation of some infant formulas many of the new nutrition concepts presented in this volume especially those concerning protein level and quality have already been translated into clinically tested products that are coming ever closer to the gold standard human milk not only in terms of composition but also of outcome The important public health implications of the information reviewed in this volume provide essential reading for pediatricians clinical investigators and health workers engaged in the prevention of nutrition related disorders

Primary Prevention by Nutrition Intervention in Infancy and Childhood Alan Lucas, Hugh A. Sampson, 2006 The 57th Nestl Pediatric Nutrition Workshop assembled a panel of leading international scientists in order to assess and extend the current state of knowledge on the long term effects of early nutrition Prevention of diseases such as obesity diabetes cardiovascular disease osteoporosis cancer and the metabolic syndrome by early nutrition intervention is the declared goal of this kind of research Single papers deal with dietary effects on mental and motor impairment the epidemical aspects of obesity the complexity of the relationship between birth weight and adult BMI the importance for primary prevention in childhood diabetes the potential of nutritional prevention of osteoporosis the nutritional key influences on cancer and the surprising link between cancer and obesity and many more Complex multifaceted and contradictory health outcomes of early nutrition elements clearly show that genetic or environmental interactions have to be taken into account and compromises have to be found to establish a good balance of risks and benefits for the wide range of different health issues which depend on nutrition and early nutrition in particular
