Criminal Theory and International Human Rights Law Steven Malby, 2019-09-11 The development of an international human rights jurisprudence on criminalization is in its relative infancy Nonetheless systematic examination of international decisions on acts engaging the criminal law reveals an emerging human rights approach to the acceptability or not of criminalization This book provides an in depth characterization of the reasoning and principles that underpin those decisions The work builds upon and adds value to existing literature by bringing together two fields of study international human rights law and criminal theory that usually receive separate treatment It provides an in depth analysis of human rights criminalization jurisprudence and presents a systematic identification of underlying reasoning and concepts that influence international human rights decisions on criminalization The work thus advances both fields independently as well as providing an example of inter sub disciplinary analysis The book will be a valuable resource for academics and students working in the areas of International Human Rights Law Criminal Law and Moral Philosophy

The Culturalization of Human Rights Law Federico Lenzerini, 2014-02-06 The idea of multi culturalism has had a significant impact across many areas of law This book explores how it has shaped the recent development of international human rights law Custodians of human rights especially international monitoring bodies try to advance the effectiveness of human rights standards by interpreting these standards according to a method strongly inspired by the idea of cultural relativism By using elements of cultural identity and cultural diversity as parameters for the interpretation adjudication and enforcement of such standards human rights are evolving from the traditional universal idea to a multi cultural one whereby rights are interpreted in a dynamic manner which respond to the particular needs of the communities and individuals directly concerned This book shows how this is epitomized by the rise of collective rights which is intertwined with the evolution of the rights of minorities and indigenous peoples in contrast with the traditional vision of human rights as inherently individual It demonstrates how the process of culturalization of human rights law can be shown through different methods the most common being the recourse to the doctrine of the margin of appreciation left to states in defining the content of human rights standards extensively used by human rights bodies such as the European Court of Human Rights Secondly different meanings can be attributed to the same human rights standards by adapting them to the cultural needs of the persons and especially communities specifically concerned This method is particularly used by the Inter American Court of Human Rights and the African Commission of Human and Peoples Rights The book concludes that the evolution of human rights law towards multi cultural relativism is not only maximizes the effectiveness of human rights standards but is also necessary to improve the quality of communal life and to promote the stability of inter cultural relationships However to an extent notions of universalism remain necessary to defend the very idea of human dignity
