Excerpt CHAPTER XVI CONCERNING THE INFLUENCE OF FAITH IN CHRIST UPON THE MORAL DISPOSITION AND MORAL POWERS OF THE SOUL. It has been demonstrated that the teaching and atonement of God the Saviour would draw to him by faith the affections of the human heart. We will now inquire what particular effect that faith in Christ which works by love has upon the moral disposition, the conscience, the imagination, and the life of believers. Would faith in Christ as a Divine suffering Saviour quicken and regulate and harmonize the moral powers of the soul? 1. The influence of faith in Christ upon the moral disposition of the soul. When its disposition is affected, the soul is affected to the centre of its being. By disposition is meant the desires or predilections of the heart which influence the choice of the will to good or evil. The radical difference of character in spirits depends upon their disposition. The spirit that has a settled love for sin and hatred for holiness is a devil, whether it be in time or eternity embodied or disembodied. And that spirit which has a settled love for holiness is a benevolent spirit in whatever condition it exists. A devil or malignant spirit is one that seeks its gratification in habitually doing evil. A holy being or benevolent spirit is one that finds its gratification in habitually doing good. Whatever therefore affects the moral disposition of the soul affects radically the character of the soul. It becomes therefore a question of the deepest interest. What effect will faith in Christ have upon man's moral disposition? The solution of this inquiry is not difficult. Is Jesus Christ holy? All Christendom, sceptics and believers, answers in the affirmative. Now the love of a holy being      Philosophy of the Plan of Salvation James Barr Walker, 1847
