Why black people aren't black: an essay on social hermeneutics and apperception Kristoffer Ehrnstrom,2023-05-22 Does black as a social signifier pregnant with history really mean what it is thought to mean Does white as the symmetrical object of black really refer to its current form Or do these apperceptive objects these epithets draw energy from somewhere else a past veiled by current discourse When we reveal historical figures in what is supposed to be an idiosyncratic context in Europe for example and refer to them simply as black due to their hue are we really putting words in their mouths colonizing the past anachronistically implanting memories Did the whiteness and blackness of the past really transcend physical appearance How did the original white and black actually look Is the current culture of equity for example actors portraying historical figures based on the premise that their physical appearance wasn t present really a revisionist act through replacement by representation the replacement of the one representing themselves by themselves unknowingly Is history simply being replaced by a new social interpretation looking as it were Lastly is the emergence of afrocentric interpretation

nothing more than the completion of a revisionist ritual erasing changed white culture inherently brown skinned to begin with These are some of the questions this essay tries to answer hermeneutically touching down in everything from metaphysics to sociology to religion all the way from ancient Egypt Kemet to Israel to medieval Europe and contemporary discourse

Black Faces in the Mirror Katherine Tate, 2018-06-05 Here Katherine Tate examines the significance of race in the U S system of representative democracy for African Americans Presenting important new findings she offers the first empirical study to take up the question of representation from both sides of the constituent representative relationship The first half of the book examines whether black members of the U S House legislate and represent their constituents differently than white members do Representation is broadly conceptualized to include not only legislators roll call voting behavior and bill sponsorship but also the symbolic acts in which they engage The second half looks at the issue of representation from the perspective of ordinary African Americans based on a landmark national survey Tate s findings are mixed But in the main legislators race does shape

how they represent their constituents and how constituents evaluate them African Americans view black representatives more positively than they do white representatives even those who belong to their own political party Black legislators however are just as likely as white representatives to sponsor and gain passage of bills in the House Tate also concludes that black House members are more liberal as a group than are their black constituents but that there is considerable divergence in the quality and type of representation they provide The findings reported here will generate controversy in the fields of politics law and race particularly as debate commences over renewing the Voting Rights Act which is set to expire in 2007
