Photographing Urban Landscape:

Photographing Urban Landscape David Chamberlain, 1987 Active Landscape Photography Anne C

Godfrey, 2023-04-28 Diverse Practices the third book in the Active Landscape Photography series presents a set of unique photographic examples for site specific investigations of landscape places Contributed by authors across academia practice and photography each chapter serves as a rigorous discussion about photographic methods for the landscape and their underlying concepts Chapters also serve as unique case studies about specific projects places and landscape issues Project sites include the Miller Garden Olana XX Miller Prize and the Philando Castile Peace Garden Landscape places discussed include the archeological landscapes of North Peru watery littoral zones the remote White Pass in Alaska Sao Paulo and New York City's Chinatown Photographic image making approaches include the use of lidar repeat photography collage mapping remote image capture portraiture image mining of internet sources visual impact assessment cameraless photography transect walking and interviewing These diverse practices demonstrate how photography when utilized through a set of specific critical methods becomes a rich process for investigating the landscape Exploring this concept in relationship to specific contemporary sites and landscape issues reveals the intricacy and subtlety that exists when photography is used actively Practitioners academics students and researchers will be inspired by the underlying concepts of these examples and come away with a better understanding about how to create their own rigorous photographic practices

Nineteenth-Century Photographs and Architecture Micheline Nilsen, 2017-07-05 Eschewing the limiting idea that nineteenth century architecture photography merely reflects functionality the objective of this collection is to reflect the aesthetic intellectual and cultural concerns of the time The essays hold appeal for social and cultural historians as well as those with an interest in the fields of art history urban geography history of travel and tourism Nineteenth century photographers captured what could be seen and what they wanted to be seen Their images informed of exploration progress heritage and destruction Architecture was a staple subject for the first generation of photographers as it patiently tolerated the long exposures of the early processes During its formative decades photography responded to evolutionary cultural forces of market and artistic production Photographs of architecture reflected a specific political or social context modulated through individual points of view For this reason the examination of each photographic image as a primary visual document and an aesthetic object rather than a technical milestone on a chronological trajectory affords a richer multi faceted approach to the extensive and complex corpus of photographs taken by photographers all over the world This project acknowledges the importance of technique in the early decades of photography but focuses on the thematic content of the material It places the photography of architecture in an international context under the contemporary critical lens sharpened by theoretical and cultural examinations of the topic Photography and the Non-Place Jim Brogden, 2019-01-31 This book presents a critical and aesthetic defence of non place as an act of cultural reclamation Through the restorative properties of photography it re conceptualises the cultural significance of non place The non place is often referred to as wasteland and is usually avoided The sites investigated in this book are located where access and ownership are often ambiguous or in dispute they are places of cultural forgetting Drawing on the author s own photographic research led practice as well as material from photographers such as Ed Ruscha Joel Sternfeld and Richard Misrach this study employs a deliberately allusive intertextuality to offer a unique insight into the contested notions surrounding landscape representation Ultimately it argues that the non place has the potential to reveal a version of England that raises questions about identity loss memory landscape valorisation and perhaps most importantly how we are to arrive at a more meaningful place Picturesque Landscapes: A

War and Photography Caroline Brothers, 2013-03-07 Drawing on the work of Barthes Eco Foucault Baudrillard Burgin and Tagg and on the historians of mentalities War and Photography presents a theoretical approach to the understanding of press photography in its historical and contemporary context Brothers applies her argument with special reference to French and British newspaper images of the Spanish Civil War a selection of which is presented in the book Rejecting analyses based upon the content of the images alone she argues that photographic meaning is largely predetermined by its institutional and cultural context Acting as witnesses despite themselves photographs convey a wealth of information not about any objective reality but about the collective attitudes and beliefs particular to the culture in which they operate Photography and Its Violations John Roberts, 2014-09-30 Theorists critique photography for objectifying its subjects and manipulating appearance for the sake of art In this bold counterargument John Roberts recasts photography's violating powers and aesthetic technique as part of a complex social ontology that exposes the hierarchies divisions and exclusions behind appearances Photography must arrive unannounced and get in the way of the world Roberts argues committing to the truth claims of the spectator over the self interests and sensitivities of the subject Yet even though the violating capacity of the photograph results from external power relations the photographer is still faced with an ethical choice whether to advance photography's truth claims on the basis of these powers or to diminish or veil these powers to protect the integrity of the subject Photography's acts of intrusion and destabilization constantly test the photographer at the point of production in the darkroom and at the computer especially in our 24 hour digital image culture Roberts's refunctioning of photography's place in the world is therefore critically game changing as it politically and theoretically restores the reputation of the art
