Thomas Annan, 1977      Nineteenth-Century Photographs and Architecture Micheline Nilsen, 2017-07-05 Eschewing the limiting idea that nineteenth century architecture photography merely reflects functionality the objective of this collection is to reflect the aesthetic intellectual and cultural concerns of the time The essays hold appeal for social and cultural historians as well as those with an interest in the fields of art history urban geography history of travel and tourism Nineteenth century photographers captured what could be seen and what they wanted to be seen Their images informed of exploration progress heritage and destruction Architecture was a staple subject for the first generation of photographers as it patiently tolerated the long exposures of the early processes During its formative decades photography responded to evolutionary cultural forces of market and artistic production Photographs of architecture reflected a specific political or social context modulated through individual points of view For this reason the examination of each photographic image as a primary visual document and an aesthetic object rather than a technical milestone on a chronological trajectory affords a richer multi faceted approach to the extensive and complex corpus of photographs taken by photographers all over the world This project acknowledges the importance of technique in the early decades of photography but focuses on the thematic content of the material It places the photography of architecture in an international context under the contemporary critical lens sharpened by theoretical and cultural examinations of the topic      Architecture in Nineteenth-Century Photographs Micheline Nilsen, 2017-07-05 Revealing that nineteenth century photography goes beyond the functional to reflect the aesthetic intellectual and cultural concerns of the time this study proposes that each photographic image of architecture be studied both as a primary visual document and an object of aesthetic inquiry This multi faceted approach drives Architecture in Nineteenth Century Photographs Essays on Reading a Collection Despite three decades of post colonial post structuralist and gender conscious criticism the study of architectural photography continues to privilege technical virtuosity This volume offers a thematic exploration of the material and a socio historical examination that allows consideration of questions that have not been addressed comprehensively before in a single publication Themes include exoticism and armchair tourism the absence of women from architectural photography the role of photographs as commodities vernacular architecture and the picturesque and historic preservation urban renewal and nationalism Micheline Nilsen analyzes photographs from France and England the two countries where photography was invented and from around the world representing a corpus of over 10 000 photographs from the Janos Scholz Collection of Nineteenth Century Photographs of the Snite Museum of Art at the University of Notre Dame      Human, All Too Human Diana Fuss, 2013-10-31 The question of what it means to be human has never before been more difficult and more contested The human with a complicated social history that has rarely been examined remains entrenched in traditional Enlightenment thinking Human All Too Human considers how we might radicalize our notion of the human Can the human be thought outside humanism Any rethinking of the human places us immediately inside an ever widening field of contrasting labels animate and inanimate natural and artificial living and dead organic and mechanistic These and other boundary confusions at the frontier of the human are the subject of this volume as each essay takes up one of three disputed border identities animals things or children Human All Too Human examines how we explain our interest in anthropomorphism and our fascination with species categorizations Essays explore what we mean by things and how the integrity of the human may already be compromised by them The nine essays in this volume all attempt to rethink the category of the human challenging some of our most cherished cultural classifications By inviting us to place the traditions subject of knowledge in the unsettling position of object these writers interrogate the boundary distinctions that until now have exempted the human from the vigilant analysis it so urgently requires Contributors Nancy Armstrong Rey Chow Drucilla Cornell Diana Fuss Marjorie Garber Barbara Johnson Cora Kaplan James Kincaid Harriet Ritvo David Willis      Vitamin D Michael F. Holick, 2013-03-09 The Nutrition and Health series of books has as an overriding mission to provide health professionals with texts that are considered essential because each includes a synthesis of the state of the science timely in depth reviews by the leading researchers in their respective fields extensive up to date fully annotated reference lists a detailed index relevant tables and figures identification of paradigm shifts and the consequences of information between chapters but targeted inter chapter refer virtually no overlap rals suggestions of areas for future research and balanced data driven answers to patient questions that are based on the totality of evidence rather than the findings of any single study The series volumes are not the outcome of a symposium Rather each editor has the potential to examine a chosen area with a broad perspective both in subject matter as well as in the choice of chapter authors The international perspective especially with regard to public health initiatives is emphasized where appropriate The editors whose training is both research and practice oriented have the opportunity to develop a primary objective for their book define the scope and focus and then invite the leading authorities from around the world to be part of their initiative The authors are encouraged to provide an overview of the field discuss their own research and relate the research findings to potential human health consequences      Thomas Annan Amanda Maddox, Sara Stevenson, 2017-05-23 Thomas Annan 1829 1887 was the preeminent photographer of Glasgow in the mid nineteenth century a period when the rise in industry and population dramatically altered the landscape of the second city of the British Empire Often working in conjunction with civic projects Annan produced numerous series that underscore the transformation of the city and its environs though he remains best known for one series in particular a group of enigmatic photographs of central Glasgow's narrow alleys or closes on the verge of demolition These haunting images made between 1868 and 1871 and regarded as precursors of the documentary tradition in photography represent the notion of progress that underpins much of Annan's oeuvre Annan's publication history serves as the organizing principle for this book which considers both the breadth of his body of work as well as the multiple formats in which his photographs appeared and circulated Featured here are seven examples including private albums and commercial books that focus on subjects as varied as the city's streets and closes the Loch Katrine aqueduct Glasgow College the cathedral and the country estates of the landed gentry highlighting Annan's extensive engagement with the city of Glasgow Plates from each of these works are faithfully reproduced in full color and an introductory essay by the leading authority on Annan surveys the life and career of this widely influential photographer Thomas Annan of Glasgow Lionel Gossman, 2015-05-25 In the wake of Glasgow's transformation in the nineteenth century into an industrial powerhouse the Second City of the Empire a substantial part of the old town of Adam Smith degenerated into an overcrowded and disease-ridden slum The Old Closes and Streets of Glasgow Thomas Annan's photographic record of this central section of the city prior to its demolition in accordance with the City of Glasgow Improvements Act of 1866 is widely recognized as a classic of nineteenth century documentary photography Annan's achievement as a photographer of paintings portraits and landscapes is less widely known Thomas Annan of Glasgow Pioneer of the Documentary Photograph offers a handy comprehensive and copiously illustrated overview of the full range of the photographer's work The book opens with a brief account of the immediate context of Annan's career as a photographer the astonishing florescence of photography in Victorian Scotland Successive chapters deal with each of the main fields of his activity touching along the way on issues such as the nineteenth century debate over the status of photography a mechanical practice or an artistic one and the still ongoing controversies surrounding the documentary photograph in particular While the text itself is intended for the general reader extensive endnotes amplify particular themes and offer guidance to readers interested in pursuing them further Seizing the Light Robert Hirsch, 2024-02-08 The definitive history of photography book Seizing the Light A Social Aesthetic History of Photography delivers the fascinating story of how photography as an art form came into being and its continued development maturity and transformation Covering major events practitioners works and social effects of photographic practice author Robert Hirsch provides a concise and discerning chronological account of photography drawing on examples from across the world This fundamental starting place shows the diversity of makers inventors issues and applications exploring the artistic critical and social aspects of the creative thinking process This new edition has been fully revised and updated to include the latest advances in technology and digital photography as well as information on contemporary photographers such as Granville Carroll Meryl McMaster Cindy Sherman Penelope Umbrico and Yang Yongliang New topics include the rise of mobile photography and surveillance cameras drone photography image manipulation protest and social justice photography plus the roles of artificial intelligence and social media in photography Highly illustrated with over 250 full color images and
