Photography And The American Scene:

Ben Shahn's American Scene John Raeburn, 2024-04-22 The paintings murals and graphics of Ben Shahn 1898 1969 have made him one of the most heralded American artists of the twentieth century but during the 1930s he was also among the nation's premier photographers Much of his photographic work was sponsored by the New Deal's Farm Security Administration where his colleagues included Dorothea Lange and Walker Evans Ben Shahn's American Scene Photographs 1938 presents one hundred superb photographs from his most ambitious FSA project a survey of small town life in the Depression John Raeburn's accompanying text illuminates the thematic and formal significance of individual photographs and reveals how taken together they address key cultural and political issues of the years leading up to World War II Shahn's photographs highlight conflicts between traditional values and the newer ones introduced by modernity as represented by the movies chain stores and the tantalizing allure of consumer goods and they are particularly rich in observation about the changes brought about by Americans universal reliance on the automobile They also explore the small town's standing as the nation's symbol of democratic community and expose the discriminatory social and racial practices that subverted this ideal in 1930s America

Encyclopedia of Nineteenth-Century Photography John Hannavy, 2013-12-16 The Encyclopedia of Nineteenth Century Photography is the first comprehensive encyclopedia of world photography up to the beginning of the twentieth century It sets out to be the standard definitive reference work on the subject for years to come Its coverage is global an important first in that authorities from all over the world have contributed their expertise and scholarship towards making this a truly comprehensive publication The Encyclopedia presents new and ground breaking research alongside accounts of the major established figures in the nineteenth century arena Coverage includes all the key people processes equipment movements styles debates and groupings which helped photography develop from being a solution in search of a problem when first invented to the essential communication tool creative medium and recorder of everyday life which it had become by the dawn of the twentieth century The sheer breadth of coverage in the 1200 essays makes the Encyclopedia of Nineteenth Century Photography an essential reference source for academics students researchers and libraries worldwide The Early

American Daguerreotype Sarah Kate Gillespie, 2016-02-19 The American daguerreotype as something completely new a mechanical invention that produced an image a hybrid of fine art and science and technology The daguerreotype invented in France came to America in 1839 By 1851 this early photographic method had been improved by American daguerreotypists to such a degree that it was often referred to as the American process The daguerreotype now perhaps mostly associated with stiffly posed portraits of serious visaged nineteenth century personages was an extremely detailed photographic image produced though a complicated process involving a copper plate light sensitive chemicals and mercury fumes It was as Sarah Kate Gillespie shows in this generously illustrated history something wholly and remarkably new a product of science and innovative technology that resulted in a visual object It was a hybrid with roots in both fine art and science and it interacted in reciprocally formative ways with fine art science and technology Gillespie maps the evolution of the daguerreotype as medium and as profession from its introduction to the ascendancy of the American process tracing its relationship to other fields and the professionalization of those fields She does so by recounting the activities of a series of American daguerreotypists including fine artists scientists and mechanical tinkerers She describes for example experiments undertaken by Samuel F B Morse as he made the transition from artist to inventor how artists made use of the daguerreotype both borrowing conventions from fine art and establishing new ones for a new medium the use of the daguerreotype in various sciences particularly astronomy and technological innovators who drew on their work in the mechanical arts By the 1860s the daguerreotype had been supplanted by newer technologies Its rise and fall represents an early instance of the ever constant stream of emerging visual technologies The Arts and the American Home, 1890-1930 Jessica H. Foy, Karal

Ann Marling, 1995-07 Between 1890 and 1930 the domestic arts as well as the daily life of the American family began to reflect rapid advances in technology aesthetics and attitudes about American culture Pictorial literary musical and decorative arts from this era all reveal a shift from clutter to clarity and from profusion to restraint as modern conveniences ranging from pre stamped needlework patterns to central heat were introduced into the domestic environment However the household arts were also affected by an enduring strain of conservatism reflected in the popularity of historically inspired furnishing styles In this collection of essays ten experts in turn of the century popular and material culture examine how the struggle between modernity and tradition was reflected in various facets of the household aesthetic Their findings touch on sub themes of gender generation and class to provide a fascinating commentary on what middle class Americans were prepared to discard in the name of modernity and what they stubbornly retained for the sake of ideology Through an examination of material culture and prescriptive literature from this period the essayists also demonstrate how changes in artistic expression affected the psychological social and cultural lives of everyday Americans This book joins a growing list of titles dedicated to analyzing and interpreting the cultural dimensions of past domestic life Its essays shed new light on house history by tracking the transformation of a significant element of home life its expressions of art
