Afterimages Liam Kennedy, 2016-03-01 In 2005 photographer Chris Hondros captured a striking image of a young Iraqi girl in the aftermath of the killing of her parents by American soldiers The shot stunned the world and has since become iconic comparable to the infamous photo by Nick Ut of a Vietnamese girl running from a napalm attack Both images serve as microcosms for their respective conflicts Afterimages looks at the work of war photographers like Hondros and Ut to understand how photojournalism interacts with the American worldview Liam Kennedy here maps the evolving relations between the American way of war and photographic coverage of it Organized in its first section around key US military actions over the last fifty years the book then moves on to examine how photographers engaged with these conflicts on wider ethical and political grounds and finally on to the genre of photojournalism itself Illustrated throughout with examples of the photographs being considered Afterimages argues that photographs are important means for critical reflection on war violence and human rights It goes on to analyze the high ethical sociopolitical and legalistic value we place on the still image's ability to bear witness and stimulate action

The Oxford Handbook of International Security Alexandra Gheciu, William C. Wohlforth, 2018-03-08 This Oxford Handbook is the definitive volume on the state of international security and the academic field of security studies It provides a tour of the most innovative and exciting news areas of research as well as major developments in established lines of inquiry It presents a comprehensive portrait of an exciting field with a distinctively forward looking theme focusing on the question what does it mean to think about the future of international security The key assumption underpinning this volume is that all scholarly claims about international security both normative and positive have implications for the future By examining international security to extract implications for the future the volume provides clarity about the real meaning and practical implications for those involved in this field Yet contributions to this volume are not exclusively forecasts or prognostications and the volume reflects the fact that within the field of security studies there are diverse views on how to think about the future Readers will find in this volume some of the most influential mainstream positivist voices in the field of international security as well as some of the best known scholars representing various branches of critical thinking about security The topics covered in the Handbook range from conventional international security themes such as arms control alliances and Great Power politics to new security issues such as global health the roles of non state actors cyber security and the power of visual representations in international security The Oxford Handbooks of International Relations is a twelve volume set of reference books offering authoritative and innovative engagements with the principal sub fields of International Relations The series as a whole is under the General

Editorship of Christian Reus Smith of the University of Queensland and Duncan Snidal of the University of Oxford with each volume edited by a distinguished pair of specialists in their respective fields The series both surveys the broad terrain of International Relations scholarship and reshapes it pushing each sub field in challenging new directions Following the example of the original Reus Smit and Snidal The Oxford Handbook of International Relations each volume is organized around a strong central thematic by a pair of scholars drawn from alternative perspectives reading its sub field in an entirely new way and pushing scholarship in challenging new directions

Resources and Applied Methods in International Relations Guillaume Devin, 2017-10-18 This book constitutes an up to date methodology reference work for International Relations IR scholars and students The study of IR calls for the use of multiple and various tools to try and describe international phenomena analyze and understand them compare them interpret them and try to offer theoretical approaches In a nutshell doing research in IR requires both tools and methods from the use of archives to the translation of results through mapping from conducting interviews to analyzing quantitative data from constituting a corpus to the always touchy interpretation of images and discourses This volume assembles twenty young researchers and professors in the field of IR and political science to discuss numerous rich and thoroughly explained case studies Merging traditional political science approaches with methods borrowed from sociology and history it offers a clear and instructive synthesis of the main resources and applied methods to study International Relations

Policing the Media is an investigation into one of the paradoxes of the mass mediated age Issues events and people that we see most on our television screens are often those that we understand the least David Perlmutter examined this issue as it relates to one of the most frequently portrayed groups of people on television police officers Policing the Media is a report on the ethnography of a police department derived from the author's experience riding on patrol with officers and joining the department as a reserve policeman Drawing upon interviews personal observations and the author's black and white photographs of cops and the clients Perlmutter describes the lives and philosophies of street patrol officers He finds that cops hold ambiguous attitudes toward their television comrades for much of TV copland is fantastic and preposterous Even those programs that boast gritty realism little resemble actual police work Moreover the officers perceive that the public's attitudes toward law enforcement and crime are directly and largely nefariously influenced by mass media This in turn he suggests influences the way that they themselves behave and perform on the street and that unreal and surreal expectations of them are propagated by television cop shows This cycle of perceptual influence may itself profoundly impact the contemporary criminal justice system on the street in the courts and in the hearts and minds of ordinary people      Now Vincent Lavoie, 2003-01-01 While the crisis that took place in photojournalism during the 1960 s brought about a significant shift in the practices discourses and institutional structures of press photography it also affected the practices of artists specifically with regard to work devoted to revitalizing the depiction of events The art world attempted to revitalize the historical genre by undertaking its critical rereading in the spirit of restoring a tradition diminished by the mass media The problem may be expressed in these terms How can history be depicted bearing in mind that the media mainly photojournalism and the electronic press have claimed a monopoly of the genre unto themselves At issue is the sizeable problem of mass media omnipotence as an obligatory referential universe for historiographical artistic practices Today it seems impossible to depict the event in any way other than by accentuating or eschewing the formal attributes rhetorical artifices and ideological precepts of the mass media These approaches to addressing historical moments have been examined in this article both because they epitomize contemporary historical writing and for the most part they constitute critical responses to stereotyped depictions of events Above all they represent a paradigm shift the mass media s prerogatives for depicting historical moments has shifted towards the field of art Contemporary depictions of catastrophe crimes sensationalist news items terrorist attacks humanitarian disasters genocides common themes in many of the artistic projects represented in the 8th edition of the Mois de la Photo a Montreal have been especially striking in this respect For of all contemporary events catastrophes are the most likely to be spontaneously propelled to the top of the news roster and the most susceptible to the various inflections of contemporary art photography      Gendered Tropes in War Photography

 Marta Zarzycka, 2016-09-13 Photographic stills of women appearing in both press coverage and relief campaigns have long been central to the documentation of war and civil conflict Images of non Western women in particular regularly function as symbols of the misery and hopelessness of the oppressed Featured on the front pages of newspapers and in NGO reports they inform public understandings of war and peace victims and perpetrators but within a discourse that often obscures social and political subjectivities Uniquely this book deconstructs in a systematic gender sensitive way the repetitive circulation of certain images of war conflict and state violence in order to scrutinize the role of photographic tropes in the globalized visual sphere Zarzycka builds on feminist theories of representations of war to explore how the concepts of femininity and war secure each other s intelligibility in photographic practices This book examines the complex connections between photographic tropes and the individuals and communities they represent in order to rethink the medium of photography as a discursive and political practice This book interrogates both the structure and transmission of contemporary encounters with war violence and conflict It will appeal to advanced students and scholars of gender studies visual studies media studies photography theory cultural anthropology cultural studies and trauma and memory studies      Representing Death in the News F. Hanusch, 2010-08-11 This new study maps and synthesizes existing research on the ways in which journalism deals with death Folker Hanusch provides a historical overview of death in the news looks at the conditions of production content and reception and also analyzes emerging trends in the representation of death online The Performance Complex David Stark,2020 The performance complex David Stark Pick the winner so you can then choose the reasons epistemic dissonance in architecture competitions Kristian Kreiner Competition and consecration in the world press photo awards Marco Solaroli Classical music competitions as complex performances Lisa McCormick Formalized evaluation the work that rankings do Wendy Espeland What s observed in a rating Rankings as orientation in the face of uncertainty Elena Esposito and David Stark Crowdsourcing before the smartphone the Zagat survey s quantification of everyday life in 1980s New York Will Payne Weathering winner take all how rankings constitute competition on webcam sex platforms and what performers can do about it Olav Velthuis and Niels van Doorn Post liberal competitions Pragmatics of gamification and weaponization William Davies What are digital reputation measures worth The rise and fall of reputation metrics on social media Dominique Cardon Merit morality and market the Chinese social credit experiment Jonathan Bach Performing numbers musicians and their metrics Robert Prey Business education and anxiety in the performance of value Fabian Muniesa Communication Yearbook 28 Pamela J. Kalbfleisch,2004-06-18 Communities are composed of connected individuals The communication that exists within about and between these communities is at the heart of Communication Yearbook 28 This book draws from the broad range encompassed by the communication discipline to review literature that has something to say about community and what the communication discipline has to contribute to understanding this human connection Offering state of the art research Communication Yearbook 28 presents an influence model addressing the most basic level of community the personal relationship the literature on romantic and parent child relationships at a distance community in terms of those working at home and telecommuting running home based businesses and participating in online communities the communicative venue for community building and fragmentation social capital and tolerance the literature on collaboration examining this communicative performance in community groups community as a foundation for the study of public relations theory and practice the visual images of community and what they suggest about these communities to those looking in from the outside the role new technology plays in maintaining community and community contexts This book is an important reference on current research for scholars and students in the social sciences Blogwars David D. Perlmutter,2008-03-07 Perlmutter examines the rapidly burgeoning phenomenon of blogging exploring the degree to which it influences or fails to influence American politics Representing Culture Claudia Alvares,2009-03-26 The essays collected in this volume are interdisciplinary in nature defying the traditional boundaries that compartmentalise and contain knowledge within particular camps Heir to the undisciplining legacy of cultural studies they attempt to transcend the restrictive frameworks of pre established discourse engaging in new and fruitful combinations of theories and methodologies The general aim of the book is to indicate new perspectives for the exercise of cultural criticism on the basis of the major issues that confront us today rather than articulate any canonical viewpoint on traditional cultural studies. These essays thus share a common denominator in that they seek to explore the field of current experience through the exercise of critique. The recontextualisation of cultural studies that this book attempts occurs along the vectors of identity politics, visual culture and technology. The collection draws attention to the fact that these vectors do not consist in delimited camps but rather in axes that intersect with each other at each instance.

Visions of War David D. Perlmutter, 2025-09-23 Visions of War provides a historical survey, an anatomy, an interpretation and a polemic about the ways human beings have created pictures of battle and conflict from the Stone Age to the Gulf War. From the dawn of time to the present, from the days of mammoth hunting to the era of Scud busting, pictures of war constitute the most persistent genre of images human beings have created. In fact, human beings are the only creatures who engage in these two activities: organized violence and the making of pictorial images, and the author shows how both art and war emerge from the same source: the hunter's eye. David D. Perlmutter's Visions of War explores and analyzes the thirteen thousand year legacy of pictures of war from various cultures over the centuries, from the Stone Age cave paintings and monumental sculpture of the ancient Near East to the art of the classical period and the Middle Ages, from pre-contact Mesoamerican imagery to Napoleonic propaganda and totalitarian art, and on to the instantaneous images of the Gulf War.

The Routledge Companion to Visual Journalism Nicole Dahmen, T.J. Thomson, 2025-09-02 Representing the first collection of its kind, The Routledge Companion to Visual Journalism introduces fundamental topics and ideas, delineates the diversity and complexity of this growing field, and creates a foundation for future scholarship and study. In the contemporary digital media landscape, still and moving images, interactive visualizations, and virtual reality are increasingly important to attract attention, cultivate engagement, inform and influence opinions, and provide a more emotive and immediate viewing experience for news audiences. This Companion draws together leading voices from academia and industry to survey this dynamic and ubiquitous mode and inspire dialogue. Along with an introduction and conclusion, the volume is structured in five sections and covers people and identities, practices and processes, technologies, equipment, and forms, theories, concepts, and values, and audience interpretation and impact. Beginning by looking at the history of visual news, chapters go on to explore how visual news is created, how journalists visually represent gender, race, sexuality, disability, elites, and ordinary citizens, key ethical ideas and theories behind the creation of visual news, and how visual news is processed, drawing in research from eye tracking, media psychology, and media literacy. The book ends with a critical look at the future of the field. The Routledge Companion to Visual Journalism is a recommended resource for all advanced students and researchers of visual journalism and communication, and will also be of interest to practitioners in these fields.

Defining Visual Rhetorics Charles A. Hill, Marguerite Helmers, 2012-08-21 Images play an important role in developing consciousness and the relationship of the self to its surroundings. In this distinctive collection, editors Charles A. Hill and Marguerite Helmers examine the connection between visual images and persuasion, or how images act rhetorically upon viewers. Chapters included here highlight the differences and commonalities among a variety of projects identified as visual rhetoric leading to a more precise definition of the term and its role in rhetorical studies Contributions to this volume consider a wide variety of sites of image production from architecture to paintings from film to needlepoint in order to understand how images and texts work upon readers as symbolic forms of representation Each chapter discusses analyzes and explains the visual aspect of a particular subject and illustrates the ways in which messages and meaning are communicated visually The contributions include work from rhetoric scholars in the English and communication disciplines and represent a variety of methodologies theoretical textual analysis psychological research and cultural studies among others The editors seek to demonstrate that every new turn in the study of rhetorical practices reveals more possibilities for discussion and that the recent turn to the visual has revealed an inexhaustible supply of new questions problems and objects for investigation As a whole the chapters presented here demonstrate the wide range of scholarship that is possible when a field begins to take seriously the analysis of images as important cultural and rhetorical forces Defining Visual Rhetorics is appropriate for graduate or advanced undergraduate courses in rhetoric English mass communication cultural studies technical communication and visual studies It will also serve as an insightful resource for researchers scholars and educators interested in rhetoric cultural studies and communication studies
